'I Am The Resurrection...'

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Here and there and nearly everywhere today, there was a special mood.

It was in countless homes, where parents busily splashed eggs with garish colors, while the kids were out at play.

It was in the stores, where women young and old made last-minute forays for new spring bonnets.

It was on the roads, in bus and train terminals and in the air, where travelers headed on holiday outings.

It was in the narrow streets of old Jeruselem, in the great plazas and basilicas of Rome, and at shrines and sacred sites in many lands, where pilgrims gathered.

It was at mountainside amphitheaters, in woods and parks and stadiums where huge celebrations were being readied.

It was in the music and colloquies of the airwaves.

It was in the green of the new grass of 1962, and in the fresh flowers.

And chiefly, it was in the many-beating hearts, and in unnumbered places of worship around the earth, great and small, where Christians came together to wait and pray—and share the triumph of their Lord.

It was the eve of their great festival, of the assurance to them that real life and love has ultimate power over death and injustice, that God has extended hope and confidence outstripping any present trouble.

"In the world you shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

It is the eve of the resurrection of Jesus, of Easter.

And its mingled bustle and bloom shed a special weekend luster in the affairs and cities of men.

Behind the Iron Curtain and outside it, in totalitarian lands and the free, the faithful prepared to mark an

YES, VIRGINIA, THERE IS AN EASTER BUNNY

Hundreds of kiddies over-ran almost every nook and crevice in various parts of Marin today, as the Easter Bunny led them in a merry chase in the annual Big Hunt. Here, children at Glenwood subdivision in East San Rafael scamper for goodies on the Church of Redeemer grounds. They could scarcely wait for the go signal by Mrs. Thomas Fraser. In Novato, firemen and wives sponsored a similar event. Similar scenes were re-enacted in various communities. (Independent-Journal photo)

Million-Dollar Building Planned For San Rafael

Tallest In Marin If Approval Won

A modern, million-dollar office building, the tallest in Marin County, will start going up this summer at Fourth and C Streets, if the plans are approved by the San Rafael Planning Commission Tuesday night.

Developer Jack Farrar of Kaehler-Farrar Development Co. disclosed plans for the building, which is proposed at the corner where 751 Club is now located.

If the proposal is approved, these are the plans: Work would start in 90 days, and the five-story structure should be completed next spring. It will have 80 feet of frontage on Fourth Street, taking in a barber shop, news stand, and a stationery and typewriter shop. Depth would be 120 feet on C Street.

Basement parking would provide for at least 20 cars, and parking for tenants will be available within a block's radius. Elevators will go from the basement to a penthouse restaurant above the fifth floor.

The proposed height is 66 feet, about 12 feet higher than the Herzog-Rake and Albert Buildings. Each floor will have 92,000 square feet of floor space.

Commercial stores will occupy the street floor and the rest will be professional offices.

Kaehler-Farrar Development Co. will own the building and lease the land for 55 years from the Kappenmann Estate and from Charles Marelli of San Rafael. Marelli owns the building now occupied by Marin Stationery and Wellen's Typewriter. The rest is owned by Kappenmann Estate.

Joe Petersen of San Rafael is property manager of the estate, represented by three sisters, Mrs. M. G. Petersen of San Rafael and Mrs. Claire Rommel and Mrs. Marin Wood, both of San Francisco. The Kappen-

East, West Berlin Police Exchange Fire

BERLIN (AP) — West Berlin and East German police exchanged gunfire and tear-gas grenades today in an incident touched off by Western holiday visitors taking a look at the Communist Wall. No one was hurt.

West police temporarily cleared people from the area, including hundreds of foreign tourists in sightseeing buses. Three French armored cars hurried to the scene with a patrol of jeeps. The East Germans brought up an armored car and police reinforcements on their side.

The trouble began when some of the visitors went right up to the wall on the Bernauerstrasse in the French sector of the divided city. West police patrolling the area began to move them away. Then an East German border guard threw a tear-gas grenade from a second-story window overlooking the wall.

The West Berlin patrolmen threw a tear-gas grenade of their own into the window. Up came a West Berlin squad car, and the policemen in it

Revolt Threat In Argentina --Truce Won

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Jose Mario Guido won a truce today from embattled army chiefs who called out tanks and artillery in a threatened blood-spilling in the nation's crisis over Peronism.

Cavalry Gen. Enrique Rauch, who staged a lightning rebellion against the army high command and launched a column of tanks and troop carriers against the capital in support of the president, told newsmen the truce was reached at a summit meeting of military chiefs.

Gen. Raul Poggi, the army commander whose artillery and infantry units had entrenched around the war ministry, waved in disgust to newsmen and refused to talk as he left the meeting at President Guido's residence.

The clash of these two generals' views brought the most warlike preparations this nation has seen since dictator Juan D. Peron was overthrown seven years ago.

The two generals had marshaled the nation's army behind them in opposing camps

Meet To Ban Tomales School Link Too Hot For Firehouse

By FRED WYATT

A meeting of West Marin residents to protest proposed Tomales Union High School unification was too hot for the Point Reyes Station firehouse last night.

The nearly 50 men and women, who overflowed the firehouse, gathered in nearby West Marin Elementary School's multi-use room.

There they voted to send a spokesman to the State Board of Education meeting in Hayward May 10 and 11 to oppose unification.

The meeting, under science fiction novelist Philip K. Dick of Point Reyes Station and communications worker Lee C. Richardson Jr. of Inverness, co-chairmen, was a rebuttal to the meeting of about 25 unification backers held Monday night in the firehouse.

The unification proposal would join Tomales High School District with four Sonoma County elementary districts and three Marin elementary districts. It is the same proposal as the state board rejected Nov. 10 except that West Marin would have three trustees on the unified board, one more than previously planned.

The state board in November suggested the Marin County committee on School District Organizations conduct more study, including possibilities that some elementary districts be placed in other high school districts.

At last night's meeting Mrs. Frank Short of Inverness berated the county committee for "not fulfilling its obligations." She said the committee considered no other possibilities except inclusion of Stinson Beach and Bolinas "and I'm convinced this was a red herring."

Speaker after speaker assailed Tomales High School as too small and too rural in outlook for students who wish to train for other than agricultural careers. The school has a little more than 200 students; West Marin residents envision a high school to accommodate 1,000.

Dick and others said the interests of West Marin lie to

JFK Starts World Fair Long-Distance

SEATTLE (AP) — President John F. Kennedy officially opened the six-month Seattle World's Fair at noon today with the tap of a gold telegraph key from far-off Florida.

The signal, by a device from a bygone era, rode piggyback across the country on a "captured" radio wave which left a star 10,000 light years ago.

It set in motion the nation's first international fair since 1940.

Tens of thousands of visitors, for whom the gates to the 74-acre grounds were thrown open an hour earlier, cheered the start of the Century 21 Exposition and the vacationing president's brief words of praise telephoned from Palm Beach, Fla.

Before that, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges complimented the fair as a "magnificent achievement" depicting as never before the advancements of science in a world pushing steadily farther into the reaches of space.

Hodges, the government's top representative at the opening day ceremonies, said no other fair had provided such cultural and scientific emphasis.

Washington Gov. Albert D. Rosellini hailed the fair as "epitomizing the dynamic vitality of the people of our great state." Sen. Warren G. Magnusen (D-Wash.) said, "We are opening the greatest exposition in the history of man." Mayor Gordon S. Clinton welcomed fairgoers to the city.

Entertainer Danny Kaye also read what was called the credo of the Century 21 Exposition, which said the fair "celebrates the gathering of men from all nations who share a common

Not First Time Maj. Roberts In Trouble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maj. Arch E. Roberts was told by the Army last September that he had disqualified himself for information duty because of activities on behalf of right-wing former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, it was learned today.

Roberts was then chief of the civil liaison section of the U.S. Army Information Office in New York. He had formerly served as a special aide to Walker when the ex-major general was commanding the 24th Infantry Combat Division in Germany.

The major has now been suspended from military duty and confined to his post at Ft. Lee, Va., pending investigation of a speech he made Thursday before the Daughters of the American Revolution here.

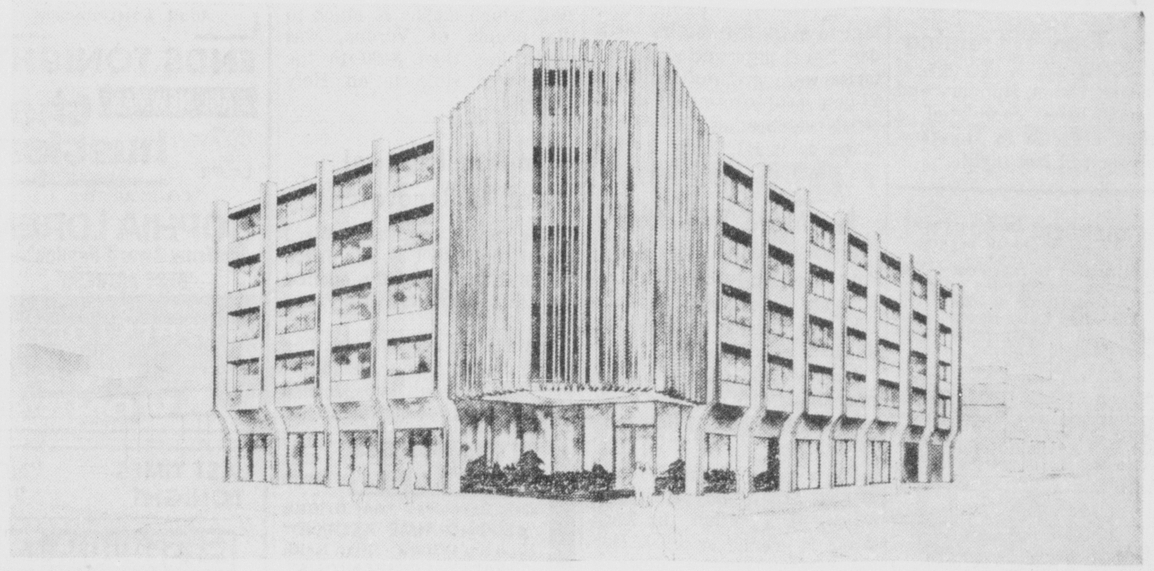

The Army made clear that the earlier action against Roberts does not figure in the current inquiry by Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr Jr.

Roberts was reassigned "without prejudice" from his New York Post, and was given duty as a medical supply officer at Ft. Lee. The phrase, "without prejudice," meant nothing injurious was placed in his permanent service record.

New York's Official Greeter Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Grover A. Whalen, who loved a parade and as official greeter during the 20s did as much as any man to warm the granite canyons of New York, is dead at 75.

Whalen succumbed to a heart attack yesterday in his fashionable upper East Side apartment with his wife of 40 years by his side.

Whalen

It was from the terrace of the apartment less than two months ago that the ailing Whalen sat in a wheelchair and watched the motorcade which was carrying astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. speed past in the East River Drive below.

Wrapped in a blanket against the chill March wind, Whalen commented at the time: "I thrill over every parade. All the parades are wonderful."

More than 30 years ago, New York's colorful Mayor James J. Walker named Whalen the city's official greeter —a post he held until he retired in 1953.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner directed that all flags on city buildings be flown at half staff until Whalen is buried.

Mrs. Powers Still Mystery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barbara Powers, wife of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers, has regained consciousness, but officials at Georgetown University Hospital said today they still didn't know what caused her illness.

Mrs. Powers was admitted to the hospital suffering from what police described as an overdose of sleeping tablets.

A hospital spokesman said she regained consciousness about 10 o'clock last night and was responding well. "Her general condition is satisfactory," the spokesman said. "As yet there has been no diagnosis. She is still being studied to determine the cause of her illness."

Mrs. Powers

Powers called an ambulance to the couple's suburban Alexandria, Va., apartment early yesterday morning.

Mrs. Powers was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where she was treated and then transferred to Georgetown University Hospital. Her Hcondition at the time was described as very serious.

Sinatra In Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — Frank Sinatra sang in Tokyo's Hibiya Park today before an enthusiastic crowd of 6,000.

Sinatra roamed about the down-town amphitheater stage for one hour singing popular American songs.

The audience, cut loose with applause after each number.

Sinatra appeared last night at the plush Mikado theater-restaurant and several hundred were turned away.

Proceeds from all performances are to go to local homes for under-privileged children.

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill's eldest daughter, Diana, has decided to revert to her maiden name, an official notice in the Government Gazette, said today.

She was previously married to Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys. Sandys married Marie-Claire, viscountess Hudson, in London Thursday.

X-15 Craft To Attempt New Record

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (UPI) — Two successful tests of the rocketship X-15 in as many days encouraged the Air Force today to attempt to set new records with the sleek craft.

Veteran pilot Joe Walker will try next week to take the X-15 almost 50 miles high.

Walker's flight will be preceded Tuesday by a high-speed test by Maj. Robert White, who hopes to fly 4,095 miles an hour at a height of 110,000 feet.

SPEED RECORD

The X-15 holds the world's speed and altitude records for manned aircraft—4,093 miles an hour and 217,000 feet.

Both flights were to be made with a new secondary emergency control system which would be used should the main flight control system fail during the re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

Walker successfully tested the system Thursday when he flew 150,000 feet (29 miles) at a speed of 3,920 miles an hour.

Neil Armstrong, testing an automatic control system, yesterday shot 207,000 feet high —the second highest the X-15 has been—at a speed of 3,818 miles an hour.

FOURTH OF SIX

Armstrong said the system "worked beautifully" and that "this was probably the best flight with the control system yet." It was the fourth of a series of six such attempts.

The 13-minute flight was witnessed by Armstrong's wife, Jan, and their son, Eric, 4, as well as a friend, Sara Laverty of San Rafael.

"I'm on top here looking out," Armstrong radioed back near the peak of his flight, "and I can see an awful long way." He later said he could see the Pacific Ocean past Catalina Island, nearly 200 miles away.

Italy Churches Robbed —During Holy Week

ROME (UPI)—Police said yesterday that thieves robbed at least two Italian churches during holy week.

Police in Nocera Inferiore near Salerno reported that thieves rifled alms boxes and stole golden ornaments from a statue in the Church of St. Matthew the Apostle Thursday night. The thieves overlooked other gold objects weighing about two pounds, which were kept in a drawer at the foot of the statue.

A thief in Verona stole a golden ring from the finger of the mummified body of the city's patron saint in the crypt of the Church of San Zeno Thursday.

The people of Verona filed through the beautiful 12th century church of San Zeno in a solemn "procession of atonement" for the theft of their patron saint's ring.

The bishop will make a further act of atonement to Saint Zeno on Easter Sunday. After a solemn mass tomorrow, Msgr. Giuseppe Carraro will take his bishop's ring and place it on the saint's hand.

Church authorities said the ring, which means so much to the people of Verona, was worth less than $400 to the thief who stole it on Holy Thursday.

Queen Is 36

WINDSOR, England (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II celebrated her 36th birthday at Windsor Castle today. With the queen were her husband, Prince Philip, and their three children; her mother, sister and brother-in-law.

Flags flew from public buildings to mark Elizabeth's birthday. Naval ships and shore batteries were ordered to fire a 21-gun royal salute. But the official celebration will take place, as usual, June 2 when the weather is warmer.

No More Whiskey?

WEIMAR (AP) — Patients at the tuberculosis sanitarium here are paying $15 to $18 a fifth for whisky smuggled in to them, officials say.

Liquor is forbidden on the grounds of the Weimar Medical Center, operated jointly by 13 counties.

"If a hospital employee is offered $18 to buy a fifth of whisky for a patient, the temptation is great," said Dr. Harold Parsons, medical director.

He asked for a county law prohibiting liquor on the hospital grounds, tighter hospital security, and sending offenders awaiting trials to the state prison medical center at Vacaville.

Negro Family Sent North By Whites

NEW YORK (AP) — A Negro family of 10, sent North by a New Orleans segregationist group, arrived here today with praise for the organization aiding them. But New York welfare officials and others called it a vicious and cruel act by the New Orleans group.

Louis Boyd, an unemployed longshoreman who said he had been unable to find work of any kind for about a year in New Orleans, told newsmen as he stepped from a bus with his wife and eight children:

"I feel that I can make it a little better in New York. I see a lot of people working here and you don't see much of that in New Orleans."

On Thursday the Citizens Council of New Orleans gave Boyd and family a one-way bus ticket to New York, food to eat en route and $50 in cash. George Singelmann, a council board member, said it was part of a plan to send North any Louisiana Negroes wishing to leave the South.

Boyd said he was glad to come here because "my wife and children were needing."

Of the Citizens Council, he commented, "They made everything convenient for us. They treated us fine and told us we had nothing to worry about."

Boyd said welfare officials in New Orleans cut off the family's $155 monthly aid last Dec. 16 when a doctor who had been attending him for pneumonia said he was well and able to work.

"Since then I have been scraping, getting aid from neighbors and we are tired of suffering," said Boyd.

Boyd said he had approached the Citizens Council when he heard it was offering aid to Negroes desiring to move North. He said two or three other families had accepted similar assistance.

"I am not sorry to leave the South," Boyd said. "There is nothing there for me."

Greeks Charge Red Rioting

ATHENS (UPI) — The Greek government charged today that Communist "task forces" provoked a series of riots and disturbances throughout the capital between riot police and civilians.

Police said 71 civilians and 82 policemen were injured during last night's riots. The official announcement said 41 arrests had been made.

Interior Minister George Rallis told a hastily summoned news conference that the disturbances were caused by three or four small units of Communists, backed by left-wing elements.

The trouble reached a climax when mechanized squads of riot police charged a crowd in the downtown section of this ancient city.

Earlier, police dispersed a crowd of about 1,500 which had gathered in a square to hear George Papandreou, opposition leader and former premier, attack the government for "abolishing democracy."

The open-air meeting had been banned by the government.

Papandreou, whose union of the center party polled 34 per cent of the votes in last year's general election, likened the present government of Premier Constantine Caramanlis to a foreign occupation, and the opposition to the underground resistance.

The former premier spoke for about a half-hour. Police said that during his speech, the crowd shouted Communist slogans, and Communists in other sections of the city attempted to create disturbances.

Comedian Stubby Kaye Is Divorced

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Stubby Kaye's wife divorced him yesterday, testifying he wanted a divorce almost from the beginning of their brief marriage.

"He liked to do nothing but sleep and play with cameras," said the former Jean Anne Watson, 26, in supporting her cruelty charges. "He was very indifferent to me."

They were married April 30, 1961, and separated Nov. 13.

Building Inspectors Kept Busy In Marin

Marin's building inspectors were busy last month, issuing permits for apartment houses.

During March, the county and its cities issued permits for a total of $6,952,208, according to a tabulation prepared by the Marin Industrial Development Foundation.

Of this total, $5,772,683 was for residential units. And of 483 new dwelling units for which permits were issued, 364 — or three-fourths — were in multiples. This includes duplexes but principally apartment buildings.

Biggest permit was for a 101-unit apartment project in Corte Madera, valued at $980,360. Other noteworthy permits included a 38-unit apartment in Tamalpais Valley, to cost $300,000, and a $250,000 medical building in Kentfield.

March permits ran 1.4 per cent above those of March of 1961. They pushed the total for the first three months of this year to $15,425,235, up 12.9 per cent from the first quarter of 1961.

San Rafael had the biggest total among the cities, with 193 permits totaling $1,514,489. But the biggest gain was in Corte Madera, which ran up a total of $1,166,779, with 114 permits issued.

Totals in other cities were: Larkspur, $798,320; Novato, $460,492; Sausalito, $450,590; Mill Valley, $300,550; San Anselmo, $280,190; Fairfax, $130,546; Belvedere, $75,163, and Ross, $6,450.

In the unincorporated areas, biggest activity was in unincorporated Mill Valley (Tamalpais Valley, Alto, etc.), where 67 permits totaling $624,776 were issued. Kentfield-Greenbrae came next with $369,000 (although the portion of Greenbrae within Larkspur contributed $627,056 to that city's total). In third spot was West Marin with $206,700.

event that to them is the great beacon of human destiny.

There were difficulties and opposition in some places. But that is part of the story. "Let not your heart be troubled . . . because I live ye shall live also."

Orthodox and Baptist churches in Moscow scheduled special services tonight and Sunday, as did churches elsewhere in Communist countries.

In Madrid, solemn processions moved along the streets, in the expectancy of the bright tomorrow. All business and public entertainments were banned for the day—except activities of a religious nature.

Rome, where 80-year-old Pope John XXIII led the observances, swarmed with an estimated 150,000 visitors. The city's 500 church bells were silent today, but ring out tonight at midnight masses commemorating the blessed event.

Other throngs — an estimated 6,000 pilgrims — crowded the walled city of Jerusalem, and threaded the candlelit passageways of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the traditional site of Christ's burial and resurrection.

Across the nation, churches scheduled late-night watch services, awaiting the Easter dawn. Thousands of persons flocked to open-air beauty spots for big interdenominational celebrations.

Sunrise services or pageants were scheduled at many places.

For tomorrow is Easter Sunday.

mann family has owned the corner property for about 80 years.

The building where 751 Club is located was built in the 1860's and remodeled and stuccoed in 1932.

George Kaenel and Shepard Porter of Tamarin Realty negotiated the lease agreement.

Developer Farrar said that space will be available in the new building for stores now located at the corner, except the 751 Club.

The new structure will be called the Kaehler-Farrar Building. It is designed by Faradg Gilan-Farr of San Rafael.

TRUCE

as the result of a crisis triggered by Guido's appointments of Rauch, to succeed Poggi, and War Secretary Gen. Marino Bartolome Carrera.

Rauch, who seemed to have gained the support of most of the army, told newsmen the truce was achieved on the basis of a formula proposed by Guido himself.

He said he accepted the solution which included an order that his rebellious troops be dispersed and sent back to their barracks.

The solution, he added, included the appointment of a new war secretary, whose name he would not disclose.

"My honor as a military man has been satisfied," he said, adding that he had confidence in the new army secretary and that Guido's solution was "satisfactory for all and for the good of the nation."

threw three more tear-gas grenades at the window.

A squad of West Berlin police appeared, their new rapid-fire Tommyguns at the ready. The East Berlin border guard came back at the window and fired two bursts of 10 shots each from his machine pistol. His shots hit the street and a house wall.

Two West Berlin patrolmen replied with four shots each from their Tommyguns, West Berlin police said. Some went through the window.

West police said their men had received orders to fire directly at East German border guards if fired on.

After a few minutes, when the incident appeared to be over, police allowed the crowd back into the area.

The Communists have standing orders to West Berliners to keep 100 yards away from the wall. West Berlin authorities, however, say anyone can go as close as he likes.

Sewer Plant Improvements Requested

The Regional Water Pollution Control Board continued its efforts to enforce state sanitary regulations in Marin County by passing resolutions requesting two county sanitary districts to improve their sewage disposal facilities.

By May, the board decreed, the Corte Madera sanitary district must adequately disinfect sewage it pours into Corte Madera creek. After the mouth of the creek has been cut off from the public, disinfection will be required only between May 1 and October 31.

Giving no time limit, the board again decreed that the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District must improve its sewage treatment facilities.

The resolution specifically instructed the district to stop a flow of untreated sewage which bypasses the treatment plant during winter months and flows down a drainage ditch which connects with the south fork of Gallinas Creek. Treated sewage does not flow into the creek during the summer, the resolution added, but remains in the ditch.

"We get those (resolutions) all the time," commented Marvin W. Brigham, director of public works for Marin County. "I doubt if we'll ever meet their standards. Actually, the Gallinas plant is one of our better ones. It's a pretty good plant."

Salan Faces Death Penalty

PARIS (UPI) — France today formally accused former Gen. Raoul Salan of plotting against the state as No. 1 leader of the secret army organization OAS. Conviction could mean death.

The indictment, under articles 86, 87, 91 and 95 of the French penal code, was read to the ex-army officer at Sante Prison by examining magistrate Georges Courcol.

First Grass Fire Blamed On Children

The first grass fire of the season was started at 2:30 p.m. yesterday by children playing with matches in back of Canyon Road in Novato.

The fire burned about one quarter of an acre in back of the homes of J. A. Cuevas at 633 Canyon Road and Harry Morris at 621 Canyon Road.

Mrs. Morris said that when the fire started, a group of boys who were playing on the hillside, ran away.

Four teen-age boys, driving down the road, saw the fire start. They stopped their car and beat the fire back with their shirts until the fire department arrived.

Credited with holding the fire in control were Ronald Porter of 701 Del Mar, Harold Sheffield of 912 Railroad Avenue, Ernest Colmer of 1033 Fifth Street and Richard Thorne of 688 Hancock Street, all of Novato.

One small boy's shoe was left at the scene of the fire. Parents may claim it at fire station No. 1 in Novato.

quest for broader knowledge and understanding."

A dozen foreign ambassadors or high government officials were on hand for the program, as was Robert Moses, president of New York's 1964 fair.

First-day attendance was predicted to be 100,000. Ten million visitors are expected before the fair's close Oct. 21. Advance ticket sales have topped 3½ million, or half the number needed for the fair to break even financially.

The wares of 59 foreign nations, including more than 30 government exhibits, and 175 domestic exhibitors are spread through the compact grounds.

Eye-catchers are the soaring 600-foot space needle, the fair's symbol; the beautiful 10-million-dollars U.S. science pavilion designed by Detroit architect Minoru Yamasaki; the 4.2-million-dollar, high-speed monorail, whisking passengers over a 1.2-mile route from a downtown terminal; and the four-million-dollar Washington State coliseum with its "world of tomorrow" theme.

A lure nearly as strong is a 15-million-dollar fine arts display with many of the world's great paintings and a 20-million-dollar performing arts program studded with top dramatic and musical attractions.

Show street will offer an earthier side with seminude revues.

Capping the opening day's program will be a fancy dress gala tonight in the opulent new opera house. The Seattle Symphony Orchestra will perform with Igor Stravinsky as guest conductor and Van Cliburn as guest soloist.

TOO HOT

the south and east rather than to the north. Tomales is about 17 miles north of Point Reyes Station and about six miles from Sonoma County. He and others favored having the West Marin district join the Tamalpais Union High School District, which will build a new high school at Lagunitas.

Defending unification at the meeting were West Marin district trustees Donald J. McIsaac, a rancher, and Gus Kovats, communications worker. When asked why the West Marin board changed to favor unification after formerly opposing it, Kovats said he changed his mind after being assured of three trustees from West Marin. He and McIsaac denied changing their votes because of political or social pressures.

Max H. Matzen of Point Reyes Station said, "Since it is obvious the majority of the (West Marin) board is against unification with the south but but the majority of those here believe it is the thing to do, perhaps it is time we got a new board."

Mrs. John Philpshek of Point Reyes Station, Mrs. Owen C. Halse of Inverness, and Mrs. Richard Hynes of Point Reyes Station were among numerous speakers asserting that if students wished training for higher education in science, philosophy or other non-agricultural careers they needed to go elsewhere than Tomales.

Mrs. John M. Costa Jr. of Olema called West Marin Elementary School "the best" and urged building a high school "to equal the school we have now if we are going to keep America free."

Several commented as did Fred Nicolaus of Point Reyes Station. He said, "I have owned property here 20 years and lived here ten years. I have noticed families move out when their children reach high school age, but they never move in." Loud applause followed this comment.

The meeting began with reading of a statement by Mrs. Short. She assailed Tomales High School's building as "dreary and shabby" and termed "its whole atmosphere one of mediocrity."

She termed the teaching staff too small and asked, "Is there anyone here who doesn't think this area will grow quickly, that we will rapidly outgrow a school situation that was out of step and out of date 20 years ago?"

Mrs. Short urged the best education for their children, are our only future. They are indeed our immortality. What finer heritage can we give them? How better can we spend our money? This, ladies and gentlemen, is the American way."

On motion of Mrs. Short the West Marin Citizens Committee for Better Education was formed. Mrs. David Baty of Point Reyes Station specified it contain two subcommittees. One committee, composed of Matzen, Dick, Mrs. Short, Mrs. Robert Allen of Point Reyes Station and Mrs. William M. Meloney of Inverness, will name the spokesman to appear before the state board.

The other composed of Mrs. Baty, Mrs. Halse, Mrs. Lee C. Richardson Jr., Mrs. Larry H. Marks Jr. of Inverness and Mrs. Philipshek, will draw up alternate plans. The state board will be asked to direct the county committee to study the alternate or alternates.

Dick questioned Kovats as to procedure before the board, and Kovats said the spokesman would need to state the group's opposition with utmost brevity.

Mill Valley Choir Schedules Concert

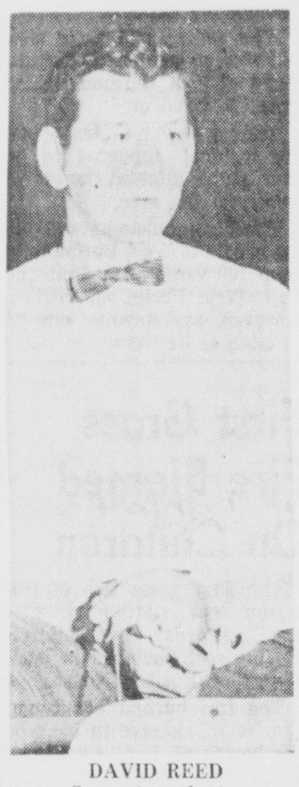

The Chancel Choir of the Mill Valley Community Church under the direction of David F. Reed will present a special concert of Easter music tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. in the sanctuary of the church.

The program will include two major choral works: "Christ Lay in Death's Dark Prison" (Cantata No. 4) by J. S. Bach, and the "Gloria in D Major" by Antonio Vivaldi.

Soloists for the two works are Jeanne Cummins, soprano; Ethelee Reed, contralto, Harry Magill, tenor; and Robert DeHaan, bass.

The choir was recently honored in being chosen to present the world premiere of a new "Missa Brevis" by Neil Pace on television station KPIX. Portions of this work, were sung at the Maundy Thursday communion service.

The church is located at Olive and Throckmorton Streets in Mill Valley. The public is invited to attend.

Church Of Nativity Sets Class Series

An inquirers' class will begin Wednesday, 8 p.m., at the Episcopal Church of the Nativity in Marinwood.

It will be conducted by Rev. James A. Blundell, pastor, and will continue at the same time each Wednesday for nine weeks. The purpose of the series, said the pastor, is "to learn of the Christian faith as received by the Episcopal Church and to prepare those who wish, for confirmation to be administered by Rt. Rev. James Pike, Episcopal Bishop of California in June at the church."

St. Raphael's Gets New Easter Organ

A new $20,000 electric organ has been installed at St. Raphael's Catholic Church in San Rafael where it will be played in a worship service for the first time tomorrow.

The organ is the gift of volunteer women who have operated St. Raphael's Mission gift shop where the funds were raised. Mrs. Gertrude Darman, the church's organist for the past 12 years, will play tomorrow.

Laymen's Classes To Start

Classes of the Layman's School of Religion will convene for spring session Monday at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Two study opportunities are offered for laymen of all denominations.

Dr. Edward V. Stein, dean of students and associate professor of pastoral psychology at the seminary, will teach "Psychology and Faith." The course will survey the psychology of guilt and forgiveness from the Christian point of view. It will emphasize the relation of psychological health to the Christian concept of redemption. The class will meet Mondays, 8 to 10 p.m. in Room 3 of Scott Hall.

"Wisdom Literature and the Old Testament" will be taught by Dr. David Alexander, assistant professor of Old Testament at the seminary.

The effect of Israel's distinctive faith upon its literature will be studied on the basis of Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastics, Job and other writings. This class will meet Mondays, 1 to 3 p.m. in Scott Hall, Room 3.

Registration will be at initial class meetings Monday. The fee is $12 for the six week course. Advance registration may be made by telephoning Mrs. David M. Boffey, of 8 Oak Avenue, Belvedere, registrar.

The Laymen's School of Religion has for the past three years provided opportunity for a systematic theological education for laymen of the Bay Area, explained Phyllis Miller, publicist. The classes, comprised of students representing many denominations, are taught by professors from various Bay Area theological seminaries and other qualified church leaders. During this time, courses have been scheduled at the request of student groups, churches, and councils of churches in San Anselmo, Berkeley, Sonoma, Vallejo, Walnut Creek, Hayward, Millbrae, Burlingame and San Mateo, she reported.

For the twenty-sixth year Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Mahon of Mill Valley are entertaining at their annual Easter Sunday brunch and party tomorrow. They've invited more than a hundred guests to enjoy the day with them and they'll be assisted in entertaining by their daughter, Judy, who is in nurse's training at Samuel Merritt Hospital in Oakland.

Among the guests will be neighbors and long time friends of the Mahons in Marin and San Francisco. This has been a busy week for the Mahons as they were in San Francisco for the ninety first annual California Medical Association convention and the convention of the Women's Auxiliary of the CMA. Mrs. Mahon is president of the San Francisco Medical Society Auxiliary. Also in San Francisco for the conventions were Dr. and Mrs. Matthew Hosmer and Dr. and Mrs. Warren Bostick, all of San Rafael. Dr. Bostick presided as president of the CMA. Dr. Hosmer is secretary and a member of the board. Mrs. Hosmer, a past state president of the auxiliary, was chairman of the auxiliary convention.

IN ENGLAND on Easter Monday, James F. Kemp will take Miss Elizabeth Ann Cuss as a bride. Jim, son of Mrs. Geraldine Kemp of Mill Valley, is well known throughout the county. He is a graduate of St. Raphael's School, Marin Catholic High School, College of Marin, St. Peter's College in Baltimore, Md. and San Francisco Law School. He is an attorney and met his bride-to-be when she was working in San Francisco. Mrs. Donald Healy Chosen New President Of Triple C

MRS. DONALD HEALY

Mrs. Donald Healy is the new president chosen to succeed Mrs. Joseph Brewster as president of the Mill Valley Community Church Club, one of the oldest women's clubs in Mill Valley, having been founded about the same time as the church in 1925.

The Community Church Club or "Triple C" was founded to serve the community by extending its fellowship to women of the church and any others who are interested. It frequently gives financial assistance to church needs and activities.

A member of the club for some 10 years, Carol Healy stepped up to the position of president having served two years as treasurer. She also served as a member of the board of trustees of the Community Church from 1958 to 1960.

She has not completed plans for the year, but one of the most important projects will be the annual opportunity sale, the 37th this year.

Mrs. Healy also has been active in the Edna Maguire School Parent-Teacher Assn. Born in Orland, she was graduated from high school in Glendale, and from the University of California with a major in home economics.

Her husband is an instrument maker in the zoology department at the University of California. The Healys, who have lived in Marin since 1941, have four children, Donald Roy, 16; Marilyn, 15; Christopher, 10; and David, 6.

Carol's leisure activities center around her home, for she enjoys sewing, knitting, gardening and outdoor activities.

NOW A HAT GETS TIP 'O THE QUEEN

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret has bowed to her sister, Queen Elizabeth, in matters of fashion—at least when it comes to hats, a London columnist says.

The Queen has progressed from what has been called a "dowdy dresser" to one of the world's best-dressed women.

Columnist Paul Tanfield said he unearthed the answer to the question asked of any woman who sports a flamboyant hat:

Where did you get that hat?

Margaret sported a lime green tulle and artificial flower creation the other day and it is the mystery of the fashion world, said Tanfield. "Who, they are asking, is Princess Margaret's new milliner?"

After a sleuthing job, he found that the hat came from Mme. Claude St. Cyr, one of her sister's milliners.

"Princess Margaret, normally the fashion leader in the royal family, has taken a tip from the Queen."

YOUR HOUSEHOLD

Floors Come Clean Fast When You Follow Advice

The U. S. Department of Agriculture offers these tips on care of wood floors.

To remove old wax, use rags moistened with turpentine or other paint thinner. A final rinse with soap and water will be necessary, but do the rinsing quickly to keep the water from reaching into the wood or turning a shellac coating white.

Wax floors every four to six months, USDA advised. And if there are children in the house, spots will need waxing more often. Even ink stains can be removed by bleaching with oxalic acid or other commercial wood bleach.

Marks caused by tennis shoes or rubber heels can be removed with naphtha or paint thinner. Use an alkali to remove stains from vegetable oils and greases, but if the grease stains come from the vacuum cleaner motor, sand off the stained area.

Other badly stained areas, such as places where water has stood for some time, also require sanding. After the stain is removed, patch the area with fresh sealer and buff with a pad of steel wool.

Extra Safeguard Taken For 'Grudge' Title Go Tonight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Champion Joe Brown and challenger Carlos Ortiz clash tonight in a 15-round lightweight title bout billed as a grudge battle for which the Nevada Athletic Commission has taken some safeguards to protect the fighters from permanent injury.

The commission decided yesterday that the mandatory eight-count rule will apply—meaning that a knocked-down fighter must take eight before the fighting is resumed.

This is the first time in Nevada boxing history that the mandatory eight-count has not been waived for a title fight, according to Commission Chairman Jim Deskin.

Commission Secretary Jack Tighe said it was a "safety precaution" prompted by the furor over the death of Benny (Kid) Paret after he was knocked out by Emile Griffith in a welterweight title fight in New York last month.

The commission, however, did not invoke the three-knockdown rule. This rule, which will not apply, ends a fight if a boxer goes down three times in one round.

Weigh in for the 135-pound limit fight was at 10 o'clock PST this morning at Convention Center, site of the fight. The center seats 7,700 and promoter Mel Greb predicted a crowd of 7,000 which would mean a gross gate of $85,000.

The fight between the 25-year-old Ortiz, who claims the champ has been avoiding him for three years, and 35-year-old Brown will be televised nationally (ABC-TV), 7 o'clock, PST, but will be blacked out locally.

Brown is guaranteed $50,000 or has the option of taking 40 per cent of the combined gate and the television money which is $60,000. Ortiz gets a flat guarantee of $17,500.

The challenger has been sounding off about the champion, charging among other things that Brown stalls for most of a round and then fights in a flurry for the last 30 seconds to catch the eyes of the officials.

The champion has not bothered to reply but his trainer Bill Gore says, "Ortiz is a little mouthy."

The challenger, a native of Puerto Rico who was raised in New York City, claims that "old bones" Brown has been evading him for more than three years.

The Brown camp laughs off this charge and points out that this is his 12th title defense since he won the lightweight crown from Wallace Smith at New Orleans in August of 1956.

Brown has had 113 fights, winning 83 of them. He has scored 38 knockouts and is rated a harder hitter than Ortiz. Ortiz has had 35 fights, winning 30 of them. He lost four and had one no-decision.

Schedule Favors Pirates, Cards Now; Giants Get A 'Break' Later

CONNOLLY

In horse racing, there is a classic set of instructions given by a trainer to his jockey in one of the many hundred granders: "Take him to the front at the start, and then improve your position!"

A similar situation exists in the current expanded 10-team race for the National League pennant, and already the screams of anguish are being heard throughout the land. Loud and often.

Because of the vagaries of the new schedule this year, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals are off and winging. And the screams are coming from the other clubs who figure to be in contention but are killing each other off, while the two leaders are picking their teeth after feeding on the soft touches.

Consider for example, the Pittsburgh club. Opening with two games at home against the Philadelphia Phillies, the Pirates next moved to New York for four games with the hapless Mets, next to Chicago for a pair, and then back to Philly for two more, followed by three more with the Mets. Mercifully, a couple of games were postponed by bad weather.

AS IF that were not bad enough, take a squint at the schedule dished up to the Cardinals. Two with the Mets, three with the Cubs, two with the Phillies, two with the Mets, three with the Cubs, and then three with the other newcomers, the Houston Colts.

It can be argued that everything will even itself out, as each team plays every other club 18 times during the year. The fact remains that the front runners are always hard to catch, and games won at the first of the year count just as much as those played in the last two weeks.

BOTH THE Pirates and Cardinals figure as strong contenders this year, and the easy starting schedule gives them a wonderful opportunity to win games even as they are ironing out the rough spots in personnel and settling down for the long summer grind.

With all this there is a bright spot in the future for the S.F. Giants, if they can continue winning better than two out of three from the toughest competition in the league as represented by the Milwaukee Braves, the Cincinnati Reds and the L.A. Dodgers.

The red letter day for the Giants comes on May 18, and you might just as well put a big red circle around that date on your calendar right now.

BETWEEN MAY 18 and June 7 the Giants will play 22 games, 20 of which will be against Houston, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago. The other two are in Dodgertown. Should the Giants be anywhere near the top of the heap a month from now, they could open up a lead by the Fourth of July that would give the rest of the league the blind staggers.

Schedule making is an arduous and a thankless job. You can't please everybody, or even a majority of the teams involved. The National League front office claims to have called in an IBM computer to aid in this year's scheduling. You can bet the IBM Corporation doesn't have an entry in the National League this season or they would send their computer back to the drawing board.

A STRONG PUTTER, BY CRACKY

An Easter Sunday feature at Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club, San Rafael, tomorrow will be a putting tournament—with RAW eggs! Shown practicing above are, from left, Karen Hellman, Mrs. Jordan Dell'Era, David Hellman and Mrs. Jock Dawe. Someone apparently putted a bit too hard and the result was a scrambled egg. Said Peacock Gap executive Berni Magill, "If we get many powerful putters we'll have the yellowest greens in the country. And that's a yoke, son." (Independent-Journal photo)

Atomic-Powered Teen Girls Dominate Nat'l AAU Swim

By HAL WOOD

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Donna de Varona and Robyn Johnson, 16, a pair of atomic-powered teen-agers go after their third titles of the Women's National AAU Indoor Swimming Championships today.

Miss Johnson, from Arlington, Va., who set an American mark in the 500-yard freestyle yesterday, will try for the title in the 250-yard freestyle. Thursday she won the 100-yard freestyle. Her time in the 500 was 5:27.2, erasing Chris von Saltza's record of 5:28.2.

Miss de Varona, 14, will try for her triple in the 100-yard backstroke, she cracked her own mark yesterday when she won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:18.9 and on Thursday she had won the 200-yard backstroke.

In addition to these record performances yesterday, there were outstanding performances in other events:

HISTORIC RECORD

—Mary Stewart, a curvacous 16-year-old from Vancouver, B.C. and the only girl in history to break the minute barrier in the 100-yard butterfly, set a new mark of 59.2 seconds.

—And Miss Johnson was clocked in a remarkable 54.1 in her leg of a losing effort in the 400-yard freestyle relay. The event was won by the Cleveland Swim Club. But Miss Johnson, off on a "leaning" start made up more than two lengths on Joann Lloyd in her supreme effort. She just failed by inches. The American mark in the 100-yard freestyle for 25-yard pools is 55.5.

In today's competition, aside from the 100-yard backstroke and the 250-yard freestyle, the events were the 200-yard butterfly, and 400-yard medley relay, plus the three-meter diving.

The other title yesterday was won by Roby Whipple, Santa Clara, in the 100-yard breaststroke. She was timed in 1:13.3, as she won by a finger-tip from Andrea Hopkins, Bethel Park, Pa., who was clocked in 1:13.4.

The arguments continued to rage in women's diving over the use of coaches as judges—especially coaches who had girls in the finals.

"I think we've got it worked out now," said an AAU spokesman. "But we'll have to wait until tomorrow to see if everybody is happy."

Mrs. Joel Lenzi O'Connell, one of the complainants, said she wasn't sure yet whether should would compete. She lost her one-meter crown on Thursday to Patsy Willard, Phoenix, and blamed it on the judging.

NBA Votes On S.F. Next Week

NEW YORK (UPI) — The proposed shift of the Philadelphia Warriors to San Francisco will be discussed at the National Basketball Assn. annual spring meeting in New York, starting April 24.

Although NBA President Maurice Podoloff declined today to speculate on the Philadelphia-to-San Francisco shift, it was well-known that this would come up for a vote at the meeting.

Also to be taken care of is the 1962-63 schedule, any suggested rules changes and the annual financial report. The meeting is expected to last for three days at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Warriors owner Eddie Gotlieb has received an offer reported to be $850,000 to sell the franchise to San Francisco interests. Such a deal would require the approval of the majority of the owners. New York Knickerbockers boss Ned Irish and Walter Brown of the Boston Celtics are believed to be against the proposed shift because it would force a realignment of the circuit's eastern division.

The $200,000 which Cincinnati interests gave Les Harrison for the old Rochester Royals interest is the previous highest price paid for a franchise shift. The Warriors are pegged at $850,000 because of star Wilt Chamberlain, one of the strongest drawing cards in the league.

THE BUMBLE-BEE STILL FLIES

Many years ago, in my early exposure in the auto business, I met a man who taught me much. He was not a sage, or a particularly wise man. In fact, he was a failure.

This man was a general manager for a near-by auto dealer. We'd have lunch from time to time, and I could always count on the same outpouring of doubt and concern about the time our second cup of coffee was served.

You see, he had made a study of the cost of living with relation to income, and from this study had come a myriad of statistics, application of which to any anticipated purchase, would prove without a doubt, that the customer could or could not afford to buy the article he desired.

This man was not just a dreamer. No, he actually applied his theory to every transaction presented to him. He'd look at the customer's credit statement, and decide, then and there, that the customer could not afford to buy his car.

The sight of this customer driving a new car purchased elsewhere that same day or soon thereafter failed to shake his dogmatic and arbitrary convictions.

This general manager was ultimately dismissed, and the dealership is now a prosperous enterprise, in larger facilities.

I told my boss about my luncheon discussions with this man. He looked at me for some moments, saying nothing. Then he said, "Lou, I think you should hear the story about the bumble bee."

"You see, Lou," he continued, warming to his story, "By all the known laws of physics, the bumble bee is son constructed, with wings too small for his body, that he cannot fly. But, since no one has told the bee he cannot fly, he continues to do so." "The moral is simply this," he concluded, "You cannot presume to decide for a customer whether he can or cannot afford something he wants badly enough. The progress of this country can be traced directly to the faith of its people in the future, and people with faith will always buy on the future."

I've been trying to pass this moral to our men at Ames. Let our customers call the signals.

FANS WONDER . . .

When Will Cepeda, Mays Bats Awaken?

CINCINNATI (AP) — Giant fans, many of whom believe they smell a pennant this year, are beginning to wonder when the big bats of Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda are going to begin booming.

Ten games into the season, neither of the Giant sluggers is in the .300 class, something most San Francisco rooters were prepared to take for granted.

Mays has slammed four homers so far, but picked up only two hits in his last 12 times at bat and had a .229 average going into today's game with the Cincinnati Reds.

Cepeda clouted three homers in one series of five trips to the plate and has 11 runs batted in. He is .289, but has rapped out only five hits in the last 20 times at bat.

Four other Giant regulars are hitting over .300, paced by Felipe Alou with .462 and 12 RBIs.

On the whole, Manager Alvin Dark still seems well pleased with his club which arrived here in third place, two games behind Pittsburgh.

"I like this team, it bounces back. It has improved. Maybe it won't win the pennant, but it won't lose it easy, either," Dark said.

"One word tells it all—maturity."

Dark was less enthusiastic about pitcher Mike McCormick, who gave up five hits and two bases on balls during his only outing this year, 2⅓ innings against the Los Angeles Dodgers who beat San Francisco 8-7.

"Mike is right back where he was coming out of spring training. He still can't get loose. He has to show me he can pitch. Until he comes to me and says he's ready, he'll just work batting practice and pitching the bullpen."

The Giants had hoped that McCormick, who won 13 and lost 16 last year, would do a big share of the pitching chores this season.

Giants' 'Kids' Day' Starts June 20 At Candlestick Park

The San Francisco Giants baseball club will start its traditional "kids' day" June 20, announced Walter Mails, club executive.

The program, which began three years ago, gives youngsters who are members of reputable youth organizations a chance to see a free Giant home day game, except on Saturdays, Sundays or holidays.

The organizations applying must be the YWCA, Babe Ruth and Little Leagues, Catholic Youth Organization or similar groups. Boys and girls must be between 9 and 14 years old to attend.

Organizations may apply by writing a letter (telephone calls will not be acceptable) to Walters Mails, Candlestick Park, San Francisco. The application should state the number of youngsters who wish to come. The Giants' invitation will assign the date and determine how many of the organization's supervisors must accompany youngsters. Requests should not be written before May 1, said Mails. He pointed out that strict supervision is necessary because in the past too many groups have allowed youngsters to throw objects, disturbing both fans and players.

He said that the seats are reserved and that the dates assigned by his office cannot be altered. If the Giants' invitation cannot be used, it should be returned so it may be given to another group, he added.

Stanford Student Leads Going Into Final Golf Round

SANTA CRUZ (AP) — Pete Choate of Stanford held a narrow lead over two fired up challengers going into the final 36 holes today of the 16th annual Western Inter-collegiate Golf Tournament.

Choate, who shot an opening round 69, followed with a par 71 yesterday for 140. Chuck Courtney of San Diego State put together a 71-70—141 over the hilly Pasatiempo Golf Course while defending champion Johnny Lotz of San Jose State followed up a so-so 74 with a three-under 68 for 142.

Stanford's squad took the team event Friday with 292-298—590. San Diego State finished second at 595 followed by Arizona State with 607.

Gallery of Marin County Civic Center, by FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT

Shape of things already here ★ A report on the growth of the county

Designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, the new Marin County courthouse is more than a building, it's an event. As an architectural landmark it promises to become an American Mecca for all who admire bold, imaginative work on a master scale. Thrusting into the future, it is indeed a new symbol of Marin. For the county, like its courthouse, is adding exciting new dimensions as it enters a new era of expansion. Here's a "view from the top" that gives you some idea of Marin's growth—and future.

Marin is becoming a green-leaved city of towns and suburban areas. Population is one of our biggest "industries," up 14,489 or 9.9% since the 1960 Census, for a total of 161,289 people. This makes Marin the third fastest-growing of the 9 Bay Area counties . . . on its way to metropolitan status.

With new people come new businesses. And Marin, gaining 28.0% in just 5 years, out-did all other Bay Area counties except Santa Clara, adding 464 new firms. Adding jobs, too, and a broader base of industry.

Income? It's our "leading product" in Marin. Average taxable return, at $9,781, is highest of any county in California—which helps explain our swimming pools, fine homes, our average of 1.35 cars per family . . . our $10,000,000 worth of boats.

Real estate is the real thing in this county. Look at the figures: real estate loans for 1961, up 33.5% over 1960—new homes, new tracts, waterside and hillside developments everywhere, some with a boat in the backyard, some with golf in the front. What a year! Multiple-listing sales, at $39,697,716, were 22.1% ahead of 1960. And despite the recessive first quarter, building permits climbed 14.7% in dollar value ahead of the prior year.

Telephones added their voice to progress, too . . . with 5,373 new ones installed in 1961, for a total of 76,078.

Around you is the stir and yeast of change. More Marin breadwinners now work in Marin County than in San Francisco—part of the new pattern. New restaurants add flavor to living. New money keeps coming in from all over the U.S., helping develop apartments, cooperatives, new tracts, new industry, marinas and golf courses. It's even expected we'll have two new industrial parks this spring.

The future then, is being created today. You can see it and feel it. You live in a community that's moving ideas into action . . . turning new energies, new business, new life, into the unlimited dimension of growth.

Growth of a newspaper, too, grows from serving the whole community

The Independent-Journal has become the first line of communication for the entire county—bought and read by 2 out of 3 households in Marin. We've added new features, greater coverage of world and local events, new ideas; taken the lead, nationally, in new printing advances. Result: readers have given us readership. This alone explains our own phenomenal growth . . . explains why 70,000 people read the I-J every evening . . . why advertising is so responsive . . . and why the most quoted phrase in Marin County is this: "I see by tonight's I-J . . ."

Serving all Marin, the Bounty County

TO SPEAK IN NEW YORK—Great Britain Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will visit the U. S. next week, and will address the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. in New York next Thursday.

VISITS U.S. NEXT WEEK

Harold Macmillan Is 'Unflappable'

EDITOR'S NOTE: British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan next week will make his ninth trip to the United States, bringing political wares which he will offer to President John F. Kennedy and, via a major public speech, to the American people. The speech will be delivered before the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. in New York next Thursday. The following dispatch reports on Macmillan and Britain.)

By PETER E. KNOX

LONDON (UPI)—They call him "unflappable" and he's been proving it all his life, from the battlefields of France to the tricky going of the House of Commons.

Harold Macmillan, prime minister of Great Britain, at 68 LOOKS unflappable. Standing six feet, with silver-gray hair and steady, gray-blue eyes and trim moustache he has the unmistakable savoir faire of the upper class Englishman.

Macmillan works hard at his job. No western leader has traveled farther on official missions than he—more than 160,000 miles in his five years in office.

For 15 years between 1924 and 1939 he remained a rank and file member of parliament.

Macmillan was, like Sir Winston Churchill, too independent a thinker as a young man to swallow the party line unquestioned. To conservative leaders of the 1930s he was a rebel with left-wing tendencies in economics.

This did not mean he was loved by the opposition labor forces. To them he was an upper class dandy with an Oxford accent.

Macmillan became prime minister in 1957 when he was nearly 63, and the nation was rocking under the disaster of Suez after the Anglo-French attack on Egypt brought global condemnation.

Macmillan lifted the party from its Suez despair, rallied the nation's economy and triumphed in general elections in 1959.

Macmillan was born Feb. 10, 1894, in a fashionable London Square, the son of a wealthy publisher and an American mother, the beautiful Helen Belles of Spencer, Ind.

She died in 1937 at 81. Her influence was to instill in Macmillan an understanding of the Anglo-American alliance which few other statesmen have achieved except Churchill. Churchill, too, had an American mother.

Macmillan had no contact with the simple life of his English forebears. In his childhood, youth and early manhood he had nothing but the best. Yet he was never just a pampered rich man's son.

Educated at Eton, Macmillan was classed a "scholar," a title reserved for the brainiest.

From Eton he went to top ranking Balliol College at Oxford.

When World War I broke out Macmillan took a commission in the elite Grenadier Guards regiment. On the battlefields of France he was wounded three times, and won the Military Cross for bravery.

In 1920, Macmillan married into one of the most distinguished houses in the British aristocracy. His wife was Lady Dorothy Cavendish, a daughter of the ninth duke of Devonshire.

He went into the family publishing business in 1921 and, in his own words, "peddled books around the north of England."

In 1923 he tried for parliament, but lost to a labor candidate by 73 votes. A year later he tried again and won.

Macmillan lost his commons seat in 1929 at the start of the depression, but won it again in 1931.

Close contact with the misery of the depression affected him profusely. Throughout the 1930s Macmillan was to be rated by many fellow conservatives as a left-winger with dangerous economic ideas.

There never was any question of Macmillan being influenced by socialist doctrine. But his refusal to swallow without question the line of his own leaders was deeply resented by the Conservative Party then in power.

Throughout the 1930s Macmillan was kept strictly out of office.

He clashed with his superiors on foreign as well as domestic policy and, in 1936, when the government proposed to withdraw the sanctions imposed on Fascist Italy, Macmillan took the drastic step of refusing the party whip. This meant he was stepping out of the Conservative Party. It could have wrecked his career, but Macmillan never hesitated.

By the outbreak of World War II in 1939 Macmillan was back in the party and, when Churchill became prime minister in 1940, he gave Macmillan his first chance, naming him undersecretary at the ministry of supply.

In 1942 Churchill sent him to North Africa to handle the diplomatic side of Britain's dealings with U. S. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and French Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Labor kept the Conservatives out of office for six years from 1945-1951, but were returned to power in 1951. Macmillan stepped into the cabinet as minister of local government and planning.

In 1954 he moved in as minister of defense for six months until April, 1955. In that month Churchill resigned and Anthony Eden became prime minister. Macmillan took over Eden's post of foreign secretary.

He held it eight months before being given charge of the national economy in December 1955 as chancellor of the exchequer.

When Anthony Eden's health failed and he had to resign the premiership a few months after the Suez failure, Macmillan was one of the most senior men in the cabinet, but few commentators thought he would be named prime minister.

Queen Elizabeth, however, after consultations with senior advisors, called on Macmillan.

Labor M.P.s tried to dismiss Macmillan as a joke. They made fun of his upper class background and predicted he would soon fall from power.

Macmillan's answer was to slap on austerity measures to lift the country out of its financial difficulties and ride out the wave of unpopularity.

Macmillan, who had failed to become a nationally popular figure in his previous 30 years in politics, found he had broken through into the homes of millions of his countrymen as a likeable personality.

When John F. Kennedy became president, Macmillan was quickly off to meet him and establish the Anglo-American alliance on a firm footing with the new administration. He has taken care to keep it that way.

BUSY TIMES AHEAD

Congress Faces Legislation Crush

By CONGRESSIONAL QUARTERLY

WASHINGTON—As Congress prepared to depart on its traditional mid-session Easter recess, prospects looked good for President John F. Kennedy's trade and tax revision bills, but the fate of a multitude of other presidential's requests was as uncertain as the April sunshine.

A logjam of key bills awaiting action by the House Ways and Means Committee was beginning to break up. However, the same bills will pile up again before the Senate Finance Committee, and Chairman Harry Flood Byrd, a conservative Virginia Democrat who often opposes "liberal" aspects of the president's program, shows no signs of rushing his deliberations.

Byrd this month said the crush of bills "is the worst I've even seen in my 29 years in the Senate. I don't know how we're going to work out of it."

With the entire House of Representatives and a third of the Senate up for election this year, the drive for an early return to the hustings will be strong.

So far, only four major bills have been delivered to the president's desk: The Manpower Retraining Act, the Welfare-Pension Funds Disclosure Act, the DuPont tax relief bill and the 13-billion-dollar military procurement authorization.

And two proposals have definitely been laid to rest for the session: Creation of an Urban Affairs and Housing Department and enlargement of the House of Representatives.

Kennedy's heightened political prestige in the wake of the steel industry's price retreat was expected to help him in driving his program through Congress.

The House has passed the tax bill and amendments in the welfare program and was hopeful Ways and Means would send forth the trade bill. After that, the House Committee has the following on its docket: Medical care for the aged, renewal and revision of Korean war excise and corporate taxes, increases in the fiscal 1963 public debt limit, further extension of the temporarily extended unemployment benefits enacted in 1961, and extension of the Defense Contract Renegotiation Act.

Apart from the various tax measures, a mass of other legislation is awaiting action in one or both chambers. The sheer volume, much of it showered on Capitol Hill in a series of presidential messages, would be enough to keep Congress busy through Christmas.

Pending bills include:

Passed by both chambers and awaiting final approval: Educational television, college aid, non-scheduled airlines regulation, authorization to subpoena corporate records for antitrust actions.

Passed by the House only: Postal rate increases, cotton textile import regulation, conflict-of-interest regulation, military construction, defense appropriation.

Passed by the Senate only: Migrant labor legislation, authorization to purchase UN bonds, creation of wilderness areas, constitutional amendment abolishing poll taxes, broadening of authority to aid Communist countries, oceanography program.

Passed by neither chamber: Foreign aid, farm bill, standby public works program, transportation and recreation programs and various drug and consumer bills.

With Marshal Koniev Back In Russia, Will Reds Use Softer Line In Berlin?

One Of Russia's Tough Military Men Pulled Back

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Marshal Ivan S. Koniev has been called back to the Soviet Union, leading some Western observers to think that a softer approach may be forthcoming on Berlin.

He has been replaced in East Germany by Col. Gen. Ivan I. Yakubovski.

Koniev, a barrel-chested former lumberjack, was a tough nut in Berlin. He had been Soviet commander in East Germany for only three days when the Communists threw up their wall last Aug. 13.

Koniev, a World War II hero nicknamed "The Tank," once gave this nutshell summary of his strategic thinking:

"Decide what the enemy expects of you, then do the opposite."

This maxim led the 64-year-old marshal to high posts in the Soviet union and caused him to be used as a hatchet man by Kremlin leaders—notably in the purge of Marshal Georgi Zhukov as defense minister in 1957.

Ironically, Zhukov was quoted as saying of Koniev in World War II: "When Koniev can play his own game no Germans can get the better of him."

Koniev also served as head of the military tribunal that sentenced Lavrenti P. Beria to death. Some reports say he played a leading role in the events that led to Beria's arrest and downfall.

With the emergence of Nikita S. Khrushchev as premier and party chief, Koniev, said to be politically ambitious, hitched himself firmly to the Khrushchev bandwagon.

He became commander of Soviet forces in East Germany on Aug. 10, 1961, at a time when East German refugees were fleeing to West Berlin at the rate of more than one a minute. That flow was quickly dammed to a trickle by the Berlin wall.

NEW COMMANDER — Soviet Col. Gen. Ivan I. Yakubovski, who was named commander of Russian forces in East Germany, talks with East German Defense Minister Willi Stoph (right). Yakubovski replaces Marshal Ivan S. Koniev who took up duties in the Soviet defense ministry in Moscow. (AP Wirephoto)

THERE'S FEAR OF ACCIDENT

World Armament Balance Is Such That Deliberate War Is Unlikely

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

In world armament such a balance exists that it is unlikely any nation deliberately would touch off a war.

Yet that very balance is a negative force, the nature of which was described by United Nations Secretary General Thant.

The United States and Russia, the world's two super-powers, he said, "May not be able to make the world behave as they wish, but they have the power to destroy it."

And with the prospect that this destructive power may be doubled by 1966, there has come the mounting fear of a war by accident and the pressing realization that a halt to the arms race no longer is a goal for the future but a necessity for the present.

At the 17-nation disarmament conference in Geneva, the United States and the Soviet Union have presented their rival plans for world disarmament.

On the surface they bear many similarities.

Both call for arms and troop cuts under supervision.

Both call for a halt to production of fissionable materials for nuclear weapons.

Both would discard the means of delivery of such weapons.

And both call for an international peace-keeping force.

But there the similarity ends abruptly.

The Soviet Union refused to permit verification of arms retained. It also refused to permit international inspection of suspected nuclear test sites and calls for an uncontrolled moratorium on underground nuclear tests.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean curtly told the Russians that the United States, having been deceived once, does "not have and confidence in a Soviet pledge."

At Geneva, the eight so-called uncommitted nations, generally have shown themselves more sympathetic to the Russian proposals than to those advanced by the United States and Britain.

With less to lose, they see less reason to insist upon an ironclad inspection system and positive proof that nuclear test and disarmament pledges are being carried out.

Meanwihle, at Johnston and Christmas islands in the Pacific, the air strips, the mess halls, the dugouts and the warehouses are ready for the next U.S. nuclear tests, scheduled for next week.

THIS WEEK In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

He called himself Louis Carriere and he lived in a three-room studio apartment in Algiers.

His hair was black and he had a bushy mustache but he attracted no particular notice when he strolled down the terror-stricken city's streets because black hair and bushy black mustaches are not uncommon.

Salan

So the man known as Carriere was startled when French security forces arrested him. He became pale but remained calm when they unmasked him as Raoul Salan, leader of the anti-de Gaulle Secret Army Organization.

Salan, whose OAS has pledged a fight to the death to keep Algeria French, was flown quickly to Paris and locked up in Santa Prison with other captured OAS members, including former Gen. Edmond Jouhaud.

Jouhaud was recently sentenced to death for his participation in the mass slaying of Moslems and pro-de Gaulle Frenchmen. It was considered likely that Salan, a cashiered general who had been France's most decorated soldier, would receive the same fate.

Two other former French generals — Maurice Challe and Andre Zeller — had surrendered voluntarily earlier and received comparatively mild 15-year sentences. Only one OAS leader, former Gen. Paul Gardy, remains at large in Algeria.

French officials predicted that the capture of Salan, leader of the OAS, had broken the back of the secret army.

Salan is expected to make the same defense as Jouhaud, that he was a patriot who did not want Algeria, which now is a part of France, to become an independent nation ruled by Moslems.

The capture of Salan climaxed a busy week that began when President John F. Kennedy made peace with the steel industry which he had denounced for raising the price of their product.

After the steel companies had rescinded their price rise, Kennedy said he had no ill feelings against their leaders. But he called on both labor and management in all industries to act in the public interest in the fight against inflation.

Other major developments:

Roberts — The Army suspended Maj. Arch E. Roberts, former aide of ex-Gen. Edwin A. Walker for saying Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles had a communist background. Yorty was defended as a loyal American by the chairman of the House on Un-American Activities. Roberts' speech was not cleared by the Pentagon.

Yorty

Disarmament — Kennedy attempted unsuccessfully to end the East-West deadlock on disarmament at Geneva by proposing to cut the world's armed forces about two-thirds in six years and eventually replace all armies with a United Nations peace force.

Defense — The House passed a record peacetime 47.8-billion-dollar defense appropriation and sent it to the Senate.

Cue Bid Made By Player As Slam Encouragement

We have devoted the whole week to the subject of nonforcing jump raises, showing about 10 or 11 points, with four or more trumps. A response of three notrump shows 13 to 16 points, with at least Q-x-x-x of trumps. Be sure not to spring such bids on an unsuspecting partner.

North's first response shows the values for a forcing raise, and South makes a cut bid to suggest a slam. Since North has more than a minimum he can afford to make an encouraging response to the cue bid.

The normal encouraging response is a cue bid, showing an ace. In this case, since the ace is in the agreed suit, North must jump to show his encouragement. A minimum bid of four hearts would be a discouraging response.

NOT COLD SLAM: Six hearts is not the coldest slam you ever saw, but South can make it by careful play. He wins the first diamond with dummy's king and tests the trumps with the ace and king.

If trumps broke 2-2, South would give up one club and claim the rest. Since trumps break badly, South must avoid the loss of a club trick.

Declarer cashes the ace of clubs and leads a club toward dummy. West must discard, since if he ruffed he would get only the club that South expected to lose.

Dummy wins with the king of clubs, and South must next finesse with the queen of spades. This works, and South cashes the ace of spades and throws West in with a trump.

West is obliged to return a spade or a diamond. In either case declarer ruffs with dummy's last trump and discards the losing club from his hand.

DAILY QUESTION: Dealer bids one heart, your partner doubles and the next player bids three hearts. You hold:

♠ K 10 9 5 2
♦ 6 5 2
♣ Q J 8 3

What do you say?

Answer: Bid three spades. Partner has spade support and a good hand so you must not allow yourself to be shut out. If you had three hearts and a singleton diamond you might even jump to four spades!

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, April 21, the 111th day of the year with 254 to follow in 1962.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

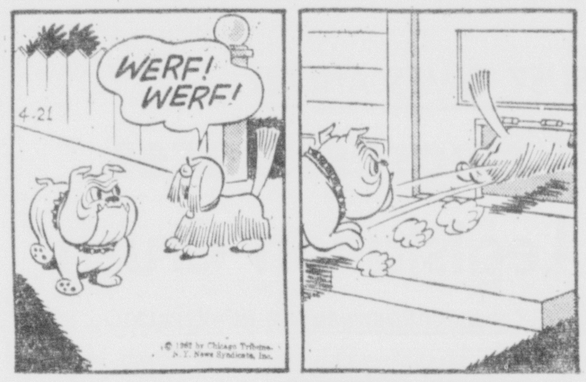

In 1836, Gen. Sam Houston and his force of 800 Texans defeated 3,000 Mexicans led by Gen. Santa Ana near Galveston, Texas.

In 1910, a beloved American figure passed from the scene as Mark Twain died.

In 1945, a broadcast from Germany said Russian troops were inside the city limits of Berlin, the first Allied soldiers to reach the capital.

A thought for the day: British statesman Disraeli said: "Man is not the creature of circumstances. Circumstances are the creatures of men."

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

CHP Is Getting Safety Car

By AUSTIN SCOTT

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A specially outfitted Highway Patrol car is nearing the end of a year-long test to improve the comfort and safety of the patrol's already efficient cars.

The test car will have rolled nearly 60,000 miles when it reaches Sacramento headquarters in June. That's about six years of average driving.

When the car left Sacramento last June to cruise around the state, it was fitted with many items that aren't standard in Highway Patrol cars.

These included shoulder harnesses, bucket seats with headrests, a storage console between the front seats, a roll bar, a special speedometer and a magnetic microphone that sticks to any steel surface.

Kent R. Milton, public information officer, said any items that improve safety or comfort might become standard equipment on patrol cars, after the test results are studied.

The Highway Patrol has run similar tests for many years. They pinpoint trouble before expensive change-overs are made.

For instance, Milton said, officers found the roll bar in the test car interfered with getting prisoners in the back seat.

And he said that although the shoulder harnesses seemed to be safer, officers found them hard to drive in.

Milton said the other additions were mostly for the driver's comfort and convenience. The special speedometer is accurate at high speed.

Except for the special equipment, the test car is a standard 1961 Dodge Highway Patrol cruiser. But standard patrol cruisers are different from the cars you buy off the showroom floor.

For one thing, Highway Patrol cars have bigger engines. The patrol insists that their cars be capable of 125 miles an hour.

And the cars must be able to accelerate to 80 miles an hour in one-quarter mile from a standing start.

Patrol cars also have heavy duty suspension, tires, wheels, batteries and radiators. They use heavy duty automatic transmissions, and don't have power steering or power brakes.

The patrol decides what make of car to buy from the lowest yearly bid that meets its specifications. It has bought Dodges for the last three years, but this year is buying Chryslers.

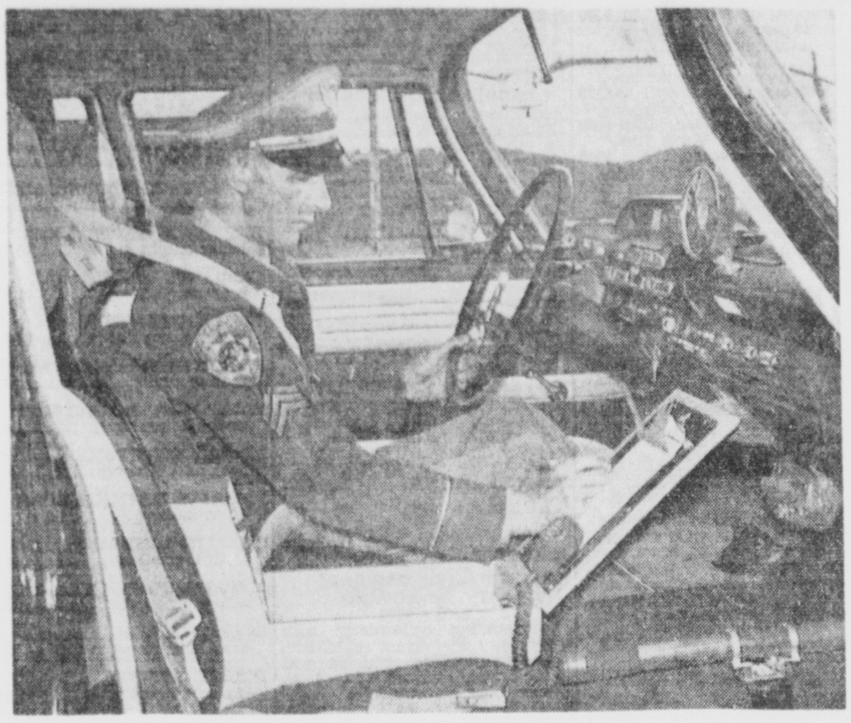

When the cars are delivered to patrol headquarters in Sacramento, patrol mechanics install the police siren and seat belts.

They also replace the generator with a heavy duty alternator, and put flares and a first aid kit in the trunk. A ready-to-roll cruiser costs about $3,500.

What happens to used patrol cars?

You can get one if you'd like. The cars are retired at 75,000 miles or 18 months, whichever comes first. They are stripped of their lights, radio and insignia and sold at public auction by sealed bid.

From six to 20 are sold every Wednesday in Sacramento and Los Angeles. Bids usually range from $750 to $875 per car. Even wrecked patrol cars sell for as much as $300. The state retires from 650 to 700 cars from its 1,000 car fleet each year.

Duck Who Came To Hitchhike

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Lora P. Davis was adopted by a hitchhiking duck.

She was driving in heavy traffic when she saw the duck on the street in front of her. She blew her horn. The duck didn't move.

So she got out of the car to shoo it out of the way. It promptly fluttered in the open door and settled down. Now Mrs. Davis has a duck.

Art, Garden Fair Due Record Prizes

Marin Art and Garden Fair exhibitors will compete for a record $15,465 in prize money at this year's "Cherry Blossoms in July" event, July 3-7 in Ross.

Awards offered by the State of California total $14,890. These prizes come from betting receipts at California race tracks. The Marin Art and Garden Fair management will make available an additional $575, derived from fair gate receipts.

The official premium list has been mailed to exhibitors, fair manager Marcelle B. McCoy reports, and copies are also available at the fair office at the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.

Prizes start at $1 for third place flower arrangement in the juniors, age six to eight, section "Tea Party," using a tiny cup and saucer as a container. They range up to $425 for a first place 525 square foot "Gendai Fu" contemporary model garden using new and unusual design and construction methods.

All categories represent interpretations of the Japanese "Cherry Blossoms in July" theme of the show design by Henry H. Cole, San Rafael landscape architect.

Floriculture and agriculture categories open to professional and amateur exhibitors include model gardens, specimen plants, bonsai specimens, flower arrangements, cut flower specimens and vegetable plate displays.

In art categories are a photography division, for both prints and slides and a fine arts division, including oil paintings, both representational and non-objective.

The fine arts division is open to all artists residing in Marin, and the photography division to residents of Marin, Alameda, Contra Costa, San Francisco, Napa, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Solano and Sonoma counties. These residential restrictions do not apply to floricultural entries.

The fair will be open to the public at 6 p.m., July 3, after an all-day judging of exhibits. July 4 through 7, fair hours will be 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Coin Marked Tax On Beards

ROME (UPI)—A bronze coin dating back to Peter the Great, Czar of Russia, and entitling the owner to wear a beard is one of the strange pieces on show in the Numismatic Museum set up by the Italian government at Rome's state mint.

The coin has very little intrinsic value, but a considerable historical value as the symbol of an epoch. Peter the Great considered beards a frivolity and a sign of financial wealth. For that reason, in 1672 he imposed a tax on beards. The coin was the evidence that the tax had been paid and the owner of a beard was fully entitled to wear it.

It was Empress Katherine II who finally abolished the strange tax, and the relative tax coins, about 100 years later.

The museum contains some 7,000 coins, worth about $1.6 million at current numismatic rates no less than $1,600,000.

Christian Science

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be heard in Christian Science church services tomorrow. This statement by Jesus Christ will be included in the Bible readings: "I and my Father are one . . . If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not. But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know, and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in Him."

Dan Davis, Manager, San Rafael Office of Wells Fargo American Trust Company, grins approval of typical printing job, shown by Ned Leibert, Sales Manager of I-J Job Printing Dept.

A Jane Of All Trades Is She

STANFORD (UPI) — Socialogists often say Americans have passed from the age of self-directed work (the farmer) to the age of employer-directed work (the wage earner).

But this sweeping generality refers to men, not to the wommen who work in the home.

Stanford University History Prof .David M. Potter says housewives are probably responsible for more self-direction, more personal arranging of time-table, more choice as to what shall be bought, what activities shall have priority, than ever before.

"She is something of a dietitian, budget manager, child psychologist, interiar decorator, appliance repairman, carpool operator and whatnot."

When you say people have become more specialized you really mean men, he said.

Here's Glimpse Of The Future

NEW YORK (AP)—Here is a glimpse into the future as seen from steel research laboratories:

Three-level railroad cars for transport of automobiles.

Redesign of automobile and truck frames, using high-strength steels to reduce weight.

Lighter, more efficient office furniture to fit modern decor.

More steel for beauty, mobility and economy in modern homes and commercial buildings.

New Day Dawning On Ferryboats

Talk Of Past, Look To Future

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Tiburon's days of the ferries Donahue, Ukiah, Cazadero and Marin may be passed.

But the days of the Harbor Queen and the Blue Horizon are here.

And, to three Tiburon Peninsula widows of ferryboat men, plus an old ferryboat salt landlocked in Forest Knolls, the old days were good and the return of the ferries a promising delight.

Two things the widows and the salt agree upon: The new ferries are fine but they should be bigger, and boat riding makes for a more pleasant life.

The air on the bay is better than ever claims 85-year-old Mrs. Bert Tuckey of Belvedere. She is the widow of the Tuckey who was chief engineer of the Ukiah, described as "the largest passenger and freight boat in the world."

"The air on the bay is so much better today," says Mrs. Tuckey, "because there's so much gasoline in the air on the land."

She adds she is delighted with the little ferries. Asked if she has been down to meet them, she replied quickly, "Oh, sure, I was on board one the first day."

She recalls meeting friends on the ferries in the old days: getting a cup of coffee and people taking a ferry to Paradise Cove on picnics.

In Tiburon lives Mrs. Charles A. Kircher, widow of the late Kircher, who was an engineer on the boats. He took the last ferry boat, the Cazadero, on its run from San Francisco to Sausalito.

Mrs. Kircher said she used to have a ferry pass. "First for myself and my husband and then for the whole family."

"Tiburon was a railroad village," she continued, and people coming off the ferry took a horse-drawn bus from Tiburon to Belvedere. "The passengers sat sideways," she said.

"You knew everybody on the boat. A round trip cost 25 cents and the trip took 32 minutes one way. The ferries whistled when they came in and whistled when they went out." Kircher, she said, began as a fireman shoveling coal in 1905. He worked until the ferries closed in 1941.

"He loved it," said Mrs. Kircher. "He worked 24 hours on and 24 hours off. They worked them!"

Mrs. Kircher said she feels the new ferries very worthwhile and was happy to read about a proposed plan to get a ferry to be given up in Benicia. "This would be more practical than these little ones," she said.

Like Mrs. Tuckey, Mrs. Kircher can look out her windows and see the boats come in. "You never get tired of watching the boats," she said.

Mrs. E. A. Creighton of Tiburon is also a widow of a ferryboat man. Her late husband was chief engineer on the Cazadero and had also sailed on the Eureka. Living in Lyford Cove since 1914, Mrs. Creighton says she has not ridden the new ferries but "I hope to."

Old salt Capt. Randolph (Rudy) Pettersen of Forest Knolls speaks warmly of the bay and the ferryboats. Norwegian-born, Pettersen started out as a deck hand on a ferry in 1913. "I was on every boat they had," he said.

Pettersen said he thinks there will have to be regular ferry slips. "In the winter time I don't know if they will like it so much. They should have bigger boats to do it right," he said.

Ironically, he rode the Harbor Queen Thursday, in honor of the 25th birthday of the Golden Gate Bridge, which he helped build.

Asked if he were interested in going back to active ferry work, Pettersen didn't hesitate but said, "I could do it . . . but I'll be 75 in a month or so."

SHE LOVES VIEW — Mrs. Bert Tuckey, widow of a ferry boat chief engineer, can see ferries operating again across the bay from the window of her Belvedere home. It's a sight she loves. She was on board the first day the Blue Horizon and Harbor Queen started revived ferry service from Tiburon to San Francisco. (Independent-Journal photo)

Music Scholarship Winners Announced

Winners of the 1962 music scholarship awards were announced today by David C. Kortkamp, president of the Marin County Music Teachers Assn.

Auditions were held this week with 25 students participating.

The Henrietta Trusty Memorial Scholarship — made possible through private donations — will be shared by two young pianists. They are Geoffrey Mayer, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mayer of Mill Valley, a pupil of Milton Salkind of Mill Valley; and Donald Munson, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Munson of Fairfax, a pupil of Viola Gottschalk of Fairfax.

Two other scholarships established with funds raised through concerts by teachers of the M.T.A. will be awarded. One goes to Janine McCready, 15, soprano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland McCready of Stinson Beach, a pupil of Madame Bella Resek of Mill Valley.

The other goes to Kathleen Baird, 14, violinist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Baird of San Rafael, a pupil of Charles Meacham of Mill Valley.

Winners will be honored at the April meeting of the music teachers association on Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meacham.

Two San Rafael Boys Admit Shooting At Car

Two San Rafael boys, aged 12 and 13, admitted yesterday they had peppered a parked car and a house in the Country Club Tract with a revolver and a rifle, both .22 caliber.

Sheriff's Inspector Harold Sleezer and Deputy Ernest Nielsen said one of the shots hit the front door about a foot or two away from a maid, who was cleaning glass on one side of the door.

The shooting occurred about 2 p.m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. Suzanne Rowland of 355 Margarita Drive. The maid who was nearly hit was Mrs. Elmeta Murry of Building C-25, door 198, Marin City.

Officers found one bullet imbedded in the front door, two other bullet holes in the roof and two dents on Mrs. Murry's car parked in the driveway.

Deputy Nielsen caught the boys on a fireroad above the house. The 13-year-old had a .22 caliber revolver slung in a holster on his hip, and the 12-year-old carried a .22 caliber rifle. Both guns were loaded.

The youngsters said they were shooting tin cans but at first denied shooting toward the house. Yesterday, they admitted firing at the house. The boys were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Officers said the boys had taken the guns from their homes without permission.

Safecrack Suspects In Court

Two suspected safecrackers, caught inside Brice Brothers Marin City Market yesterday morning, appeared in Marin Municipal Court yesterday and asked for the public defender to represent them.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas set $2,625 bail on each and continued the case until Monday.

Homer Wayne Briscoe, 22, and Phatherrell Green, 23, are accused of felony burglary. Sheriff's Deputies James L. Current and Boyd Burnham, who found the two suspects inside the safe room, arrested the two after firing one warning shot through a window.

More than a dozen officers from the sheriff's office, various police departments and the California Highway Patrol surrounded the market within a few minutes after the first deputies called for help.

Officers said the half-ton safe had been nearly hammered open with heavy tools when Deputy Current spotted a broken window and radioed the alarm.

Nearly all the officers who took part in the capture had just attended a course on burglary and safe-cracking at the Marin County Police Training School two hours earlier.

Aboard Carrier

Lt. Cmdr. Herschel M. Browne, son of Mrs. Helen C. Browne of 845 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael is serving aboard the aircraft carrier Forrestal, with the Atlantic Fleet out of Norfolk, Va.

Kind Thoughts Before Judge

ELMIRA, N. Y. (AP)—Peace Justice Elwin Brown recalled the time a man was arrested for driving through a barricade of a road under repair.

"Let's just change places," Brown said. "How do you think—in justice—that I should handle this situation?"

"Well," said the man, "I think a good talking to would do me more good than anything else."

First Bar-Mitvah Set At New Temple

Michael Wellen of San Rafael will participate in the new Temple Rodef Sholom's first Bar Mitvah, a religious ceremony confirming his symbolic entry into manhood.

Wellen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wellen, 18 Sirard Lane, San Rafael, will first read from the Torah during the religious ceremony to be held May 5, a day after dedication of Marin County's first Jewish temple, on North San Pedro Road in Santa Venetia.

ANNUAL BAN ON MUSSELS IS STARTING

Mussels are out.

A tasty seafood in fall and winter, these shellfish are a deadly poison May through October, the Marin County Health Department warned today.

The annual ban on mussels will be effective May 1 all along the California coast. Collecting or selling mussels during the quarantine is illegal, except for use as fish bait. They should not be fed to pets either.

Clams also eat the small marine plants which are poisonous at this time of year, and the dark parts of clams should be thrown away and all white meat thoroughly cleaned before eating, health officials warned.

Water Safety Poster Contest Set For Schools

A $50 first prize and $25 second prize in U.S. Savings Bonds will be awarded in a water safety poster contest among Marin high school students.

Posters must reach the patrol care of Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos at the courthouse in San Rafael by May 31 or, if mailed, carry a postmark before midnight of that date, Kelly said.

Drawings must be in black on white 12-by-18-inch paper with margin of one inch on top and both sides and three inches at the bottom. Posters may contain a single drawing or series. Wording used should be concise.

The name, address, phone number, name of school and the contestant's experience, if any, in boating should be stated in the lower three inches of each poster, Kelly said.

Pro-America Candidates Talk

Two candidates for governmental posts in June's primary election will speak before the Marin Unit of Pro-America at the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross, Monday, May 7, at 1 p.m.

The public is invited to hear John A. Busterud (R-San Francisco), running for state assembly; Donald H. Clausen (R-Crescent City), candidate for the United States House of Representatives, First Congressional District; and Judge Carlos R. Freitas of San Rafael, speaking for Thomas R. Coakley (R-Mariposa County), in the race for state attorney general.

City Of Mill Valley Boasts Three New ('It's Wonderful') U.S. Citizens

Mill Valley has three new American citizens this month, two born in Germany and one English-born.

Mrs. Vera Burns of 8 Rowan Way claims "I'm a Heinz 58th variety." Although born in Germany, she said she was really Czech since her father was Czech and the custom was to take the nationality of one's father. Her mother, now living in Berkeley, was German. Her father is dead.

Mrs. Burns is the wife of Alfred Burns, a San Francisco real estate broker. They have two sons, Michael, 7, and Robert, 6.

Mrs. Burns lived in England after Germany and, when her parents became British subjects, she automatically became one, too. She came to the United States in 1951 and lived about 10 years in the East Bay. She said she loves Marin. "They ought to employ me for the chamber of commerce."

Burns, British-born, is a naturalized citizen.

"It feels wonderful to be a citizen," said Mrs. Burns, adding "This is the first citizenship —of three — I have had anything to do with."

Mrs. Ingeborg A. Erlandson of 935 Vernal Avenue was born in what is now East Germany. She lived, since 1939, in Dusseldorf in West Germany. She has her grandmother and a few relatives in East Germany where she last visited in 1952.

Mrs. Erlandson's husband, Roy, is from Sweden and got his citizenship in 1954. They have three youngsters, Kurt, 7, Britt, 4, and Eric, 2.

"I have already registered to vote," said Mrs. Erlandson, who works part-time at Marin General Hospital as a laboratory technician. Her husband is an engineer.

Richard S. Turpin, a bartender at the Buena Vista in San Francisco, was born in a small town in England. He moved around for years and says now he's tired of wandering and will settle down for good in California. Single, he lives at 46 Woodside Lane.

At 14 he went with his parents to Capetown, South Africa, where his father was in real estate. Then, at 19, he went to sea as a deck hand and sailed in the Far East. In World War II he went to Canada and joined the Royal Canadian Air Force. He was sent to India, Burma and Sumatra. He became a Canadian.

He returned to Canada, worked in hotel business, then came to San Diego in 1956. Having liver four years in Marin, he claims it has a climate half way between the 20-below of Canada and the jungle heat of Africa.

He will vote "definitely" next time and adds he believes people who come to citizenship through naturalization often do a better job as citizens than those born here.

"We ex-aliens," Turpin said, "are constantly aware that citizenship is a privilege rather than a right."

Civic Center's Lagoon Unsafe

The partially filled artificial lagoon at the new Marin Civic Center may be an attractive spot for children to play, but it's not safe, the Marin County Health Department warned today.

Many youngsters are using the lagoon for swimming and boating, Dr. Mary Jo Tonelli, assistant health officer, reported.

"Parents should keep their children away from the lagoon," Dr. Tonelli said, "because the water is not sanitary, and there's real danger of drowning."

Mill Valley Demos U.N. Discussion Set

"A General Evaluation of the United Nations—Past, Present and Future" will be the subject of a discussion sponsored by the Mill Valley Democratic Club, Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Kaulum, 51 Meadow Road, Mill Valley.

Robert Essig, political science instructor at College of Marin, will be in charge of the discussion.

An Easter Message For Our Readers

AS THE CHRISTIAN WORLD prepares to mark one of its great observances, Easter Sunday, tomorrow, Rev. Donald H. Baldwin brings this Easter message to the readers of the Independent-Journal's Marin Magazine. Reverend Baldwin is the pastor of the First Methodist Church of San Rafael at 9 Ross Valley Drive, San Rafael. He tells what Easter means to him. And poses a searching question to you. (Independent-Journal photo)

A Minister Asks A Searching Question: 'What Does This Day Really Mean To You?'

By
REV. DONALD H. BALDWIN
Pastor, First Methodist
Church of San Rafael

Easter isn't a fact; it is a faith.

It isn't something you could verify in a laboratory. Nor is it something you could easily demolish there, either.

Easter, next to Christmas, is probably the queerest thing in the world. It is queer because the story itself is so indefensible by the standards we apply to all other "practical" habits and aspects of life.

WHAT IS CALLED "Easter" was inspired by the New Testament story of the resurrection of Jesus from death. Regarded by one group of Christians as infallibly true, it is though of by others as an exaggerated narrative, and by still others as a record which may be rather freely interpreted and symbolically applied. Regardless of personal preferences held by individuals it is widely understood as the great mystery which indisputably attests the "presence" of the unconquerable spirit of Christ. In spite of death's everpresent threat to personal and spiritual survival, the Easter faith gives assurance of the invincibility of the soul.

It seems reasonable to millions, therefore, to utilize the interpretive values of the resurrection and the open tomb. In fact, most people, whether Christian or otherwise, claim a belief in immortality, the existence of the soul after death, even though they cannot accept the literal story of One Man's unique survival of the grave.

Easter is the occasion when this faith, in Christian circles in particular, is acknowledged.

WE KNOW that to retain health it is necessary to regularly restore physical bodies with food. Yet there are hundreds of thousands within the influence of Christendom whose only outward religious attitude is observable when they join the "Easter Parade" and are swept into a church somewhere some April morning.

Ask them "Why?" and the replies will be as varied and loaded with myth and fantasy as any child's fairy-story book.

My Easter message to you isn't so much a message as it is a searching question: What does Easter really mean to you? Most thoughtful persons who believe in and utilize the Easter faith in today's materialistic world have had to justify retaining it.

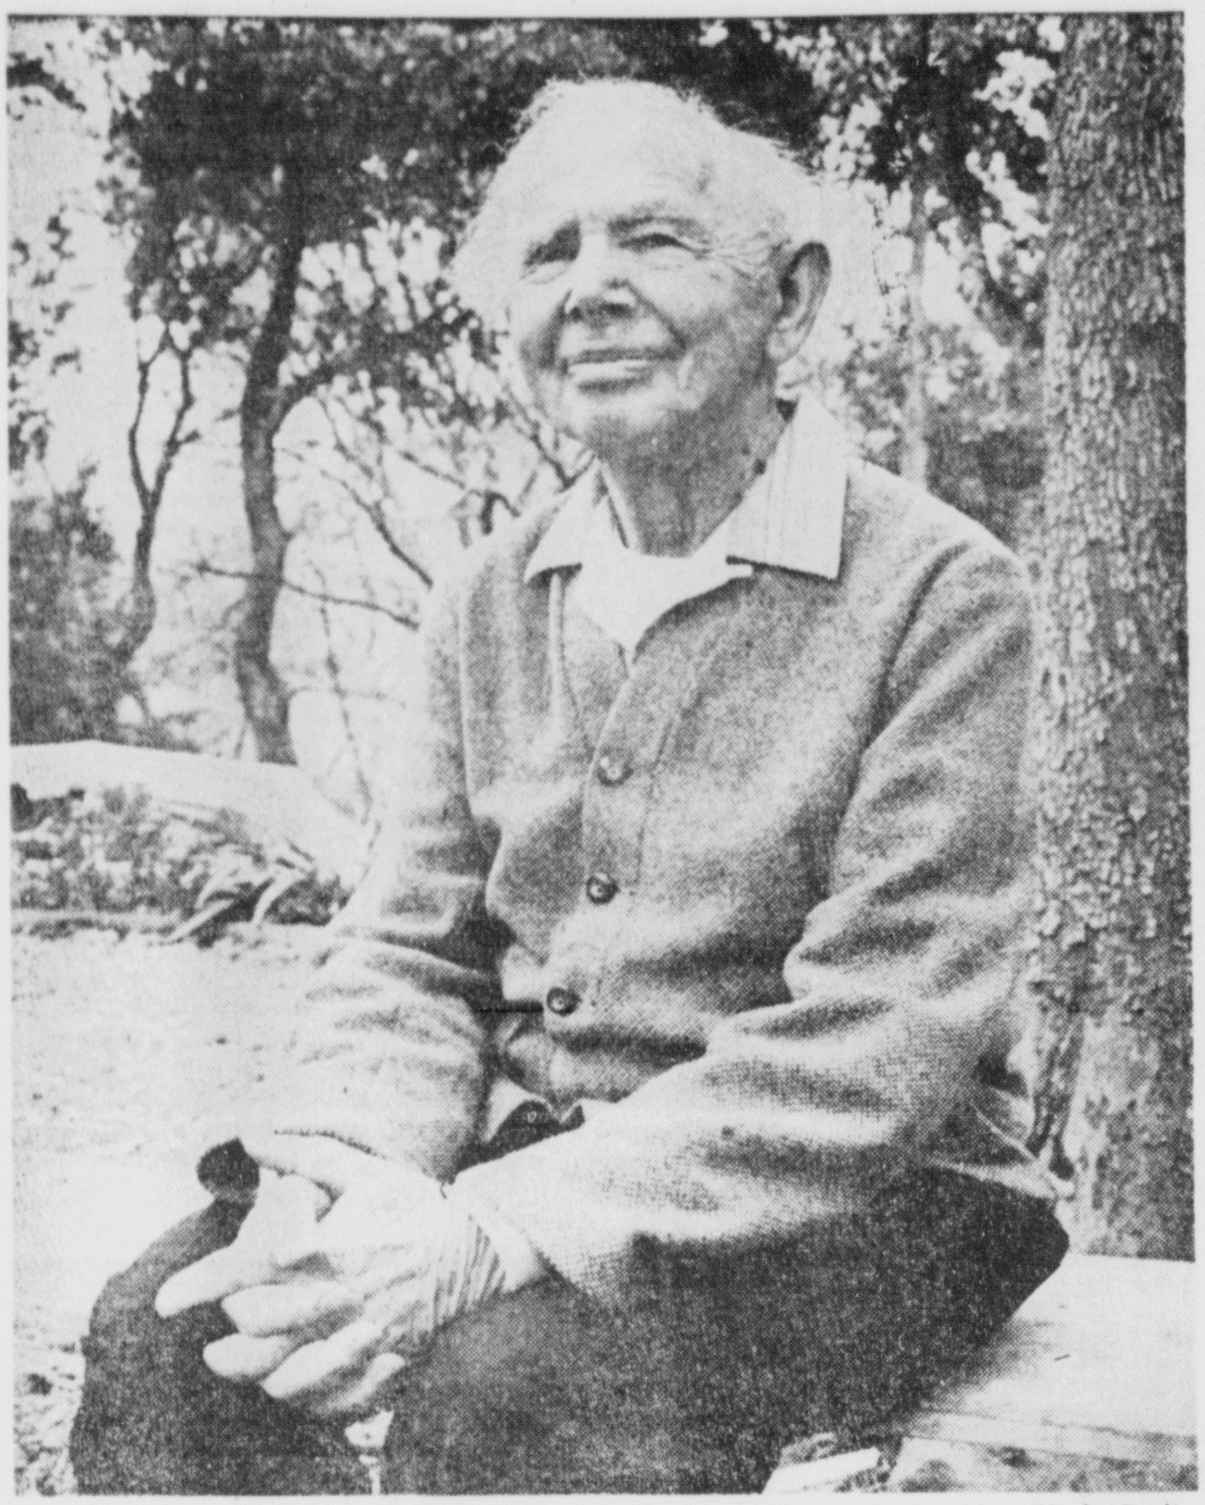

I know what Easter means to me. What it means to me would be very unlikely to change your spiritual course or theological attitude. My question is simply this: What do you believe Easter means? What does the story of an empty tomb mean to the masses spiritually undernourished people suffering from the malnutrition of an inadequate annual pilgrimage to a church somewhere?

I know what Easter means to me and that my Redeemer lives.

MY FAITH is such that even though cancer, divorce, death on the highways, threat of atomic war and all kinds of unpredictable suffering assail, yet the Easter hope assures me that these maladies cannot "fence me in." The fact of death is devastating, to be sure, but the faith I have in the indestructability of that which I really am is reassuring and more persuasive.

Through the symbols of this season Jesus' life says to me, "Because I live ye shall live also." Darkness and death have no final victory.

This is my Easter faith. What is yours? Do you have any? And if so, why?

Only Pupil Of Fritz Kreisler Is Still Teaching Violin At 80

Artur Argiewicz Of Ross Has Known Many Of The Music World's Greats

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Still teaching violin at the age of 80 at his home in Ross is Artur Argiewicz—the only pupil taught by the late Fritz Kreisler.

"He was my ideal both as a musician and as a man. He was the kindest and most unselfish person I have ever known," said Argiewicz.

The association of the two men, who were only seven years apart in age with Kreisler, of course being the elder, was more like a family relationship. While Artur was completing his musical education under the greatest violinist of his generation, he lived with Kreisler and his wife for five years in Berlin, traveling everywhere with them on concert tours so that he would not miss lessons.

ARGIEWICZ HAS many tales to tell of their experiences together.

On the afternoon of his debut in London he was overwhelmed when Kreisler, at the last moment, came onto the stage, swept aside the regular accompanist and proceeded to play the piano accompaniments for the entire concert himself.

"Since we'd had no rehearsal, and he played without music, using his own improvisations, he nearly knocked me over," said Argiewicz.

After Artur came to the United States in 1905, the friendship continued, as Kreisler visited his pupil first in New York and then later in San Francisco.

ARGIEWICZ—who says his Polish name is easy to pronounce if you remember that the last two syllables are sounded "gay witch'—played with the San Francisco Symphony for 39 years, retiring in 1956. For eight of those years, Argiewicz was assistant concert master of the orchestra.

Back to his relationship with Kreisler, Argiewicz says:

"I'll never forget one incident that shows how kind he was. He was giving a concert in San Francisco, in 1936 I think it was, and my wife was ill and couldn't attend. He came to our home after the concert and played the entire program over again, just for her."

At this point we couldn't resist asking him if a certain story were true . . . It was about a society grande dame, who on engaging Kreisler to play at a private party in her home had said that of course he would not be expected to mingle with the guests.

"In that case," Kreisler is said to have retorted, "the fee will be cheaper."

"Yes, that was quite true," said Argiewicz. "It happened in London."

Nor is Kreisler's the only name among those of the all-time great in the world of music that are woven throughout the tapestry of Argiewicz's life through more than chance encounter.

It IS STAR studded with those of Brahms, Joachim (the greatest violinist of his era), Caruso, Ysaye, Godowsky, Rachmanioff, Gabrilovich, Bauer, Stowkowski and many others.

BORN IN WARSAW, Poland, on July 17, 1881, Artur was one of two boys and four girls in his family. Their father was in the military uniform business, and Artur and his sister Eugenia were the only ones with musical talent. She later became a very well known violinist in San Francisco for many years, and it was she who was responsible for Artur's coming to San Francisco to live.

"I first studied flute — which I had to give up when the doctor said it was too great a strain — then drums for a while. But I finally started the violin at the age of 6 under Maurice Rosen of the opera in Warsaw. He later taught many years at the University of Washington."

When he was 8, Artur gave his first public recital, appearing also before Brahms who gave him a letter to Josef Joachim in Berlin. So impressed was Joachim with the young prodigy that he gave him a violin especially arranged for his youthfully small hands.

Of Brahms, Argiewicz remembers little.

"When I visited in the home of Brahms' friends, the Victor Miller-Aichholzes, in Austria, I used to come in from playing tennis often and find him there, but at that age I had no idea how important he was and had no particular respect for him.

"It is the little guest house these people had especially for Brahms on their property that is now the Gmunden Museum devoted to him."

TODAY BRAHMS, Beethoven and Schubert are Argiewicz's favorite composers.

Through Joachim's introduction Artur played with the Berlin Philharmonic and after that toured all over Europe concertizing.

To prevent the gifted boy from being exploited, S. Landecker, the proprietor of the philharmonic, adopted him and educated him. All of his academic instruction, including English, was under private tutors. Later he learned French, German, Russian and Italian.

At the age of 15 Artur was engaged as concert master at Helsingfors, Finland, and the next year was offered the position of concert master with a Leipzig orchestra.

Instead he and his sister went to study with the great Belgian violinist Eugene Ysaye.

In 1905 after completing his study with Kreisler, Artur came to New York.

"I had always heard of the great opportunities in this country, and sure enough, I hit the jackpot the day I landed. When I put a dime in a public telephone to call New York from Hoboken, N. J., about a place to stay, some $13 came tumbling out. Needless to say, I couldn't wait to become a citizen of that kind of country, and put in for my first citizenship papers immediately."

Argiewicz obtained his final papers just before World War I.

In 1917 he came to San Francisco to join his sister, and in 1929 to a home he had built at the end of Tamalpais Avenue in Mill Valley, for he had come to love the area through the many hours he had spent hiking up Mount Tamalpais.

"I used to put my wife and son Artur on the little train that went up the mountain and hike up myself, beating the train to the double bow knot. I must have hiked up that mountain a thousand times, often returning just in time for a concert."

THIS SON Artur, by his first marriage, was killed in World War II and is buried in Italy.

After his first wife died, Argiewicz married again, and this wife, now Mrs. E. L. Isaacs, and another son also named Artur, since he was born the year after the first son died, are living in Muir Woods.

After this marriage ended in divorce, Argiewicz and his present wife, the former Destiny Norgren of the state of Washington, were married. He met her when she was living with Argiewicz's neighbor, the famous weaver "Mama" Gravander, while she was attending Mrs. Gravander's School of Swedish Applied Arts in San Francisco.

The Argiewiczs have an 8-year-old daughter Angela, who would make a perfect "Alice in Wonderland." Though she takes piano lessons, it is somewhat under protest, for she is far more interested in animals, especially horses.

She has three pets — a guinea pig she calls Baby Dumpling, a cat named Chubby and a dog, Timmy.

"It was partly for her sake we moved to Ross," said her father, "because we had heard so many good things about the school system."

"And it is excellent," he added.

Mrs. Argiewicz plays the piano for her own amusement, "but only when he is

EVEN THE GREATS of the music world have their lighter moments, as this old snapshot taken by Artur Argiewicz demonstrates. The picture, taken one summer in Maine, shows some of Argiewicz's musician friends having some fun over pianist Harold Bauer's need of a haircut. Wielding the lawn mower is Leopold Stowkowsky, the famed conductor. Pianist Ossip Gabrilovich pulls Bauer's hair while pianist Leopold Godowski prevents his escape. Argiewicz has filled many albums with the results of his hobby of photography including shots of all-time music greats.

THE LIFELONG FRIENDSHIP that existed between Fritz Kreisler, left, and Artur Argiewicz is attested in this photograph of the two musicians together which the great Kreisler autographed for his only pupil. Argiewicz describes Kreisler as "the kindest and most unselfish of men."

THE WORLD RENOWN TENOR Enrico Caruso used to tease his musician friend Artur Argiewicz about his sartorial elegance. This is a caricature Caruso drew of Argiewicz one day. Now it is a treasured possession of the violinist—a souvenir of his friendship with the immortal singer.

A Friend To Greats Of Music

Argiewicz Has Known Likes Of Brahms, Caruso

out of the house," she admitted.

Argiewicz has two hobbies, fishing and photography. The house is filled with framed pictures he has taken and many albums of snapshots of beautiful scenery he has encountered in his world travels and of people.

AMONG THESE are many pretty girls and women.

Said his wife, "Mrs. Speckmann, you could write a big story about him and the women in his life."

"Not with you around," he retorted quickly, with a wink.

Argiewicz could also write a history of the San Francisco Symphony, for he played with it under Alfred Hertz, Pierre Monteux during his entire time as conductor, and for one season under Jorda.

In 1956, suffering from bursitis, he was told by his doctor that it was time to give up and give his body a rest.

"I feel retirement very much," he said, "but I keep busy teaching and would like to do more. I enjoy chamber music and playing, especially quartets, both with amateurs and professionals whenever I can."

A few days after this interview we happened to be talking to Jean Mattos Maguire of Mill Valley, principal cellist with the Marin Symphony and a member of the San Francisco Symphony. She also plays the cello with the Marin Arts Quartet.

"Oh," she said, "I would like to say that I owe to Mr. Argiewicz a great deal of my knowledge and experience with quartets. He was with the San Francisco Symphony, and I was just a little high school girl, so flattered to be able to play in quartets with him."

Argiewicz has testimonials from Kreisler, Ysaye and Godowsky attesting to his exceptional skill as a teacher. One of his pupils was chosen one year from among a thousand high school boys to lead a national youth orchestra.

OF HIS OWN playing, critics in New York, Berlin, London and San Francisco have written in superlative phrases.

"I sometimes wish we hadn't sold our home in Mill Valley," said Argiewicz wistfully. "I enlarged it in 1937 and made it a really beautiful place. But as long as I can see Mount Tamalpais, I'm happy."

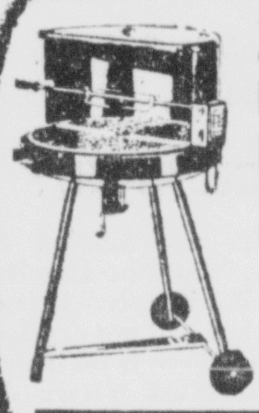

FROM ONE OF Artur Argiewicz's photograph albums comes this picture showing him in his younger years engaged in one of his favorite hobbies—fishing. He is a lover of the outdoors and frequently hiked up Mount Tamalpais, often returning just in time for a concert.

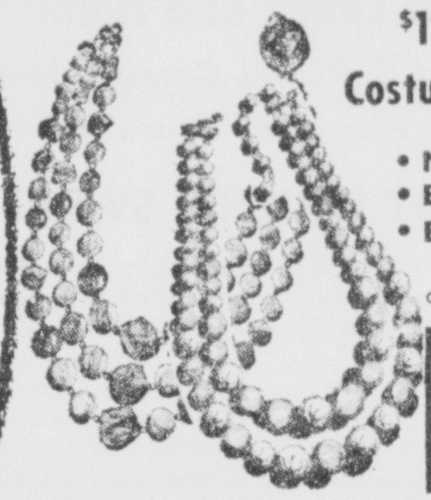

LISTENING CRITICALLY to the playing of one of his pupils, Buddy Oakley, 13, of Santa Venetia, is Arthur Argiewicz who has testimonials from the likes of Kreisler, Ysaye and Godowsky as to his exceptional skill as a teacher of the violin. (Independent-Journal photo)

If Antiques Could Talk—

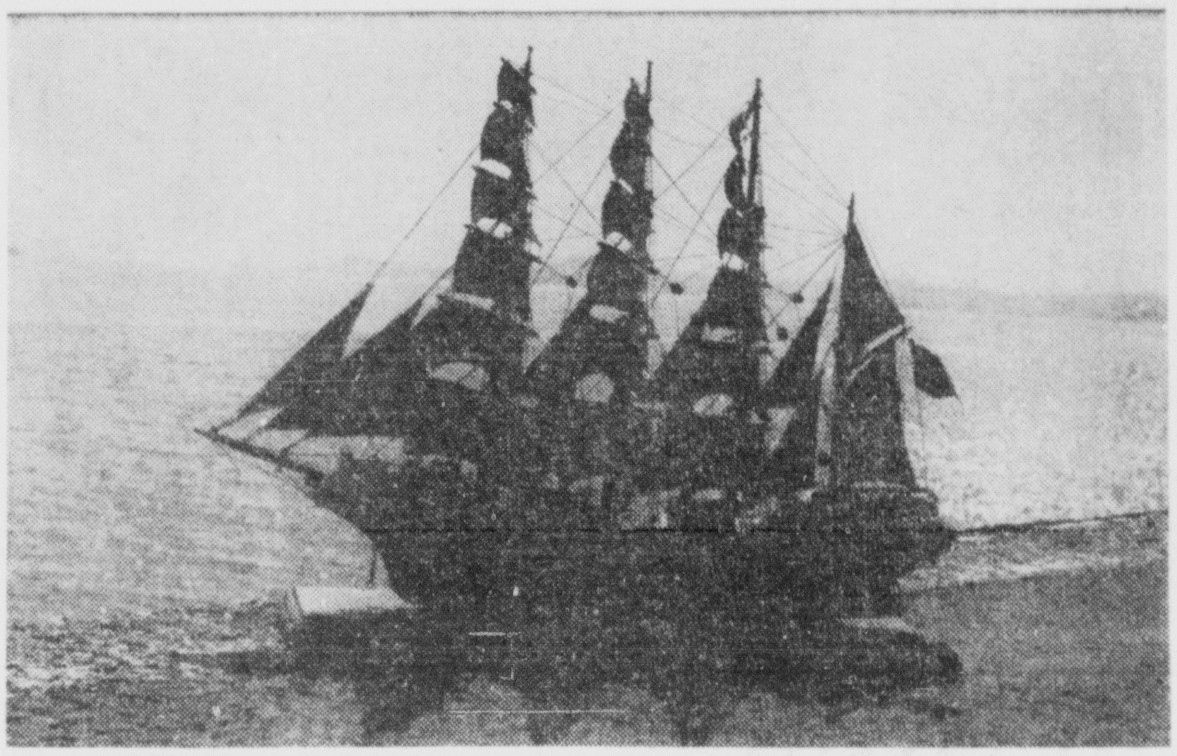

One of the most fascinating aspects of antique collecting —or admiring—is to speculate upon the history of the fine old pieces.

Even better is to know that history.

Any antique enthusiast will tell you that an antique piece would have not one but many fascinating stories to tell—if it could talk.

Take, for instance, the pieces shown here from Jeanne Davis' shop on Sausalito's Bridgeway.

All will be on display at the Marin County Antiques Show and Sale which will open next Thursday at the IDESST Hall at 511 Caledonia St. in Sausalito and continue through April 29. Hours will be noon to 10 p.m. daily. Episcopal Church of Our Saviour of Mill Valley is the sponsor.

COMIC OPERA STAR Mme. Pearl Ladd, now living in Sausalito, was given this model of the last French sailing vessel to leave a San Francisco Bay port. The skipper of the ship she sailed on presented the star with the model.

THIS COBALT blue and gray ewer—a beer pitcher—was once used to transfer cool beer from keg to table in a German rathskeller. Each customer had his own stein, kept on shelves in the inn, and welcomed the approach of the intricately wrought pitcher and its refreshing contents. The bas-relief design tells a tale from early mythology. The pitcher is typical of a piece from Mettlach, the German manufacturing center for ewers. This particular one came from the Van Ness mansion of the San Francisco Spreckels. (Photos by Connie Beeson)

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

"CAN MY PRINTED SWEATER BE DRYCLEANED?

Printed sweaters are very popular now. Perhaps that is because they can be printed with interesting designs much less expensively than when the design is woven. Sweater wearers are able to have a greater number and a greater variety than ever before. This is fine, but you should be warned.

If you'll notice it, most printed sweaters carry a label with instructions on how they should be cleansed. Without exception, it appears that dry cleaning will cause the printed design to fade. The reason for this is that the dye which is printed on the sweater is mixed with an adhesive to make it stick. This adhesive is the "badboy." Most of the times it will dissolve in dry cleaning solvent and your colorful print fades considerably. Some of these sweaters are labeled distinctly, "Do Not Dryclean. Hand Wash Only." It is obvious they will not dryclean.

When there is no instruction label, ask your drycleaner. He has ways to determine whether or not your sweater can be drycleaned. But, unless you just don't care, do not take chances unless you know. Your professional drycleaner can tell you.

THE DANISH equivalent of "Hello, Central" was spoken into this French-style telephone employed long before dialing days by a Copenhagen telephone company. Technically, this is a decorator's item, not a collector's item, since the latter term implies a great rarity.

THIS GAMING TABLE was once the center of music hall gaiety. It was found in the old hotel in Rough and Ready, one of California's picturesquely-named gold mining towns. Rough and Ready, you may recall, seceded from the Union. And when it applied in 1948 for a postoffice, it had to be reinstated.

140 WORDS PER MINUTE is the shorthand capability of Sir Francis Drake High School senior Nadine Sahlin, shown doing a bit of secretarial work for science teacher Norman Goldstein Jr. She is her school's outstanding business student and a college preparatory major with honor roll grades. After working with Goldstein on his $25,000 National Science Foundation grant, Nadine decided to major in science in college. (Photo by Brooks Dutt)

Teachers Say 'Nadine's A Gem'

An exceptional academic record, professional competence as a secretary, work before and after school to practice those skills, an interest in science, active in church and school.

It's an impressive bill of goods for a 17-year-old.

These achievements belong to Sir Francis Drake High School senior Nadine Sahlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Sahlin, 180 Deer Hollow, San Anselmo.

Nadine doesn't think it's so unusual. She even has time left over for a good deal of other responsibility.

SHE INTENDS to take on more. Next year she'll attend College of Marin to take a liberal arts course, heavy on mathematics and science, and then transfer to California Lutheran College near Los Angeles.

Until last fall she wanted to be a legal secretary. Yet she took a heavy college preparatory course with the commercial subjects.

Her shorthand skill is little short of phenomenal for with only three semesters she can take dictation at 140 words per minute, unusual for a high school student, say teachers Arlene Toda and Gwenmar Powell.

To become a topnotch secretary, she did extra work such as taking dictation from the radio. Last fall she volunteered to work before school each day for science teacher Norman Goldstein, recipient of a $25,000 research grant at Drake.

Goldstein had been asked to prepare exhibits for the Seattle World's Fair and he needed a secretary to help him put the proposal together.

That's when Nadine gradually changed her mind about becoming a secretary. Goldstein's work intrigued her. She continued to do his somewhat voluminous correspondence and she decided to study science in college.

"It's been a windfall," Goldstein said. "My grant provides for secretarial help, but it's in Berkeley. Dictating by telephone or taking it across the bridge was harassing. Nadine's a gem."

Meanwhile, she also took a period of office practice at Drake and was assigned to principal's secretary Mrs. Aileen Veblen. Among other things, she takes dictation from Mrs. Veblen. True to form, she voluntarily stays stays after school to work—just for practice.

"She's the most outstanding secretary I've ever seen," Mrs. Veblen said. "It's useless to even check her transcriptions and typescripts, for they're always perfect."

Nadine explains, "It just fascinates me, all of it. Especially shorthand. Still, I'm sold on science now, probably physiology."

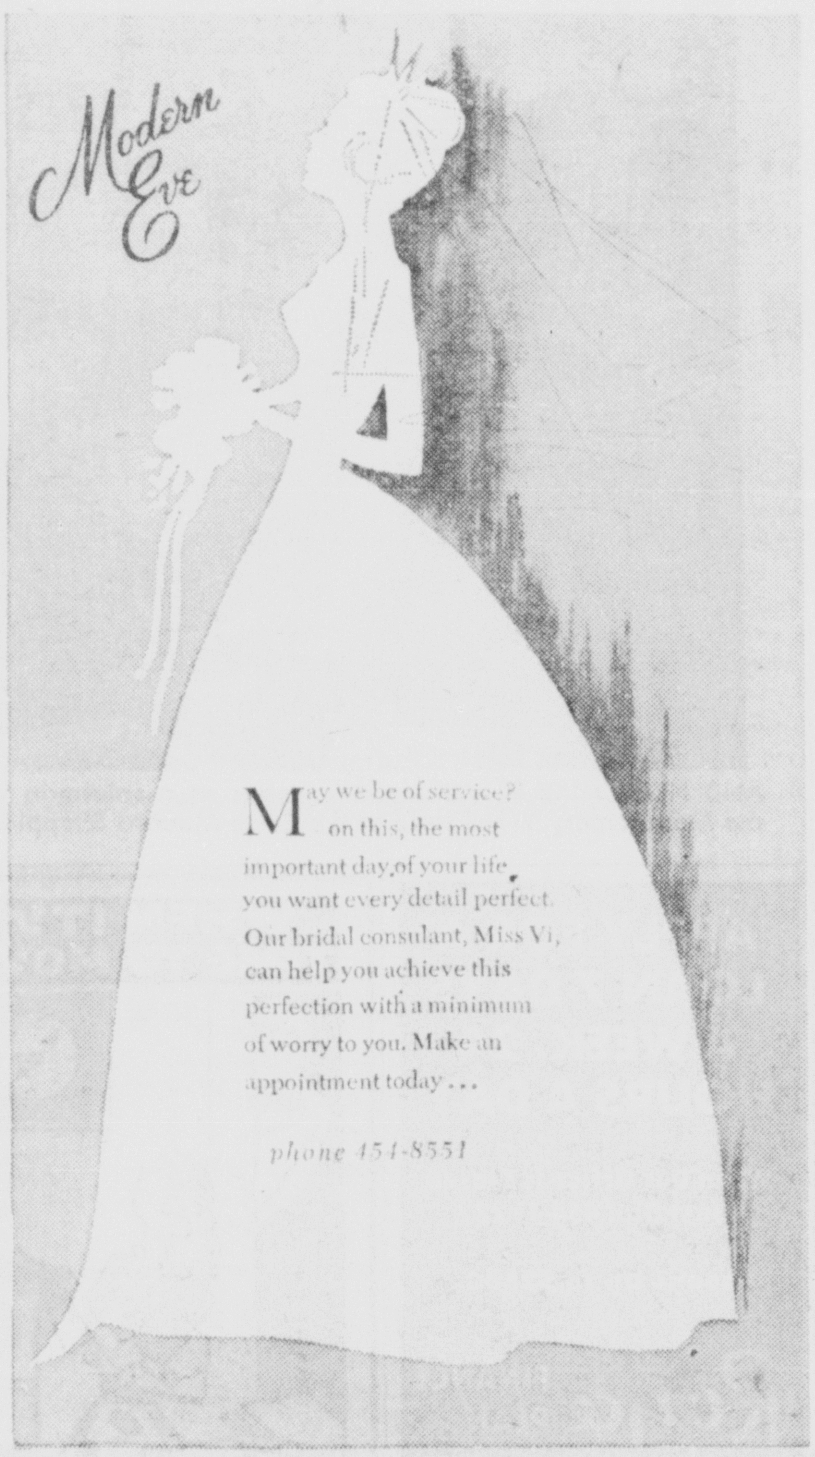

NADINE DIDN'T know what her grade point average was thus far. She did finally admit, however, that she has become a life member of the California Scholarship Federation which means she's been an honor student at Drake for at least four of her first six semesters.

Besides these things, Nadine is active in the Christ the Victor Lutheran Church of Fairfax where she is a choir member and president of the Lutheran League. At Drake she has been in the school Pep Club and was secretary for the Representative Assembly.

Well, yes, one more thing, she admitted.

She won the Bank of America vocational arts division plaque at Drake this year, having qualified as the school's most outstanding business student.

That hardly sums her up, but it's an indication.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania

It's Easter time again. Easter is a time of happiness. It is a celebration in commemoration of the day when Christ rose from the dead. Whatever your faith may be, Easter Sunday is an excellent time to take the family to your place of worship and listen to the beautiful voices of your choir. Easter music can lift the spirit.

Since beautiful music for the home is our goal, we feel that you should avail yourself of the splendid opportunity to listen to "live" music as often as possible. There is nothing quite as dimensional, or you might say as stereophonic, as listening to an actual live performance of a choir. The voices blend together in beautiful harmony, and interspersed here and there you will hear the soloists.

Listening to live performances, instead of recordings, will develop your ability to enjoy the true, undistorted quality of sound. Don't allow your hearing perspective to be dimmed by constantly listening to that 3 or 4 inch speaker on your television set, or to the distorted sound of a table model radio, or a poor quality Hi-Fi or Stereo set.

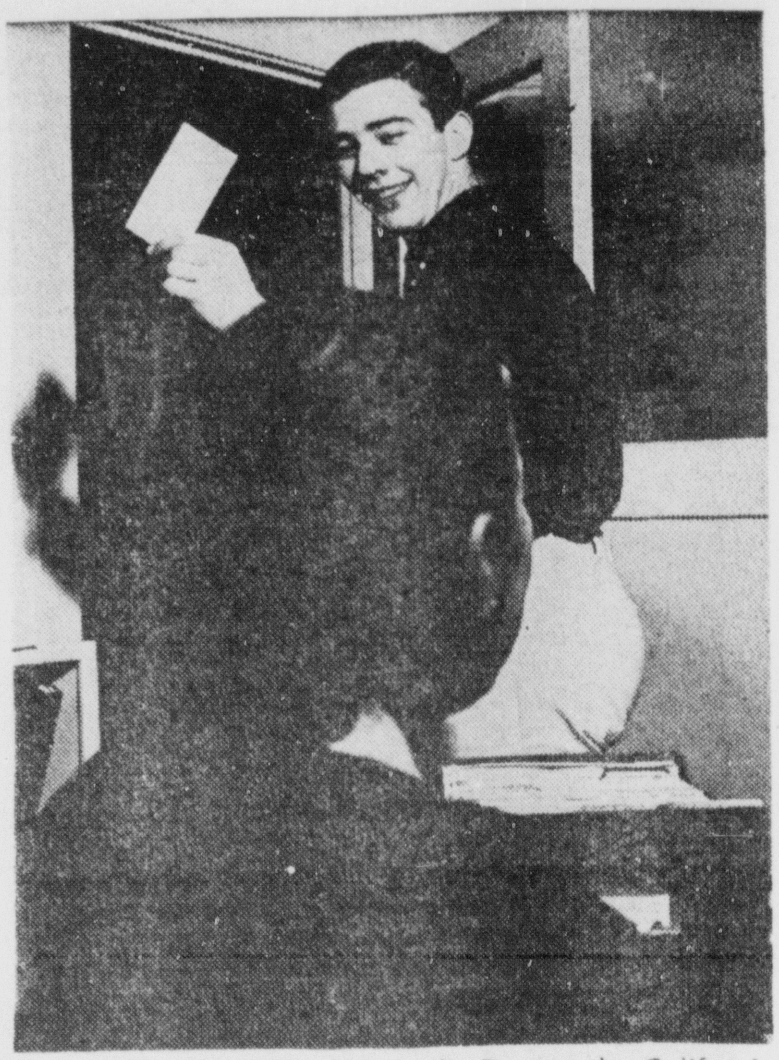

Easter is a Happy Time. Try concentrating on good music on this day. Listen to the voices around you, the birds, the street sounds, and the choir. Allow yourself to truly enjoy this "all-around-us" live sound and you are bound to find this Easter a day full of meaning.

We at Catania Sound ask you to join us, each in your own individual way, in absorbing and making the most of all of the beauty of this Easter Day.

COLLEGE OF MARIN sophomore Mike Somers, 19, is considering taking on a part-time job to help finance his education. But first he checks with his faculty advisor, Dr. Samuel LeCount, to determine just how much outside work his scholastic load will permit. Advisor and student agree that Somers will be able to handle an outside job.

NEXT, MIKE CONTACTS Miss Leslie Draper, the California State Department of Employment job counselor on the Kentfield campus. They discuss Mike's qualifications, and the various job opportunities. Then Mike departs with a job referral slip addressed to the Montgomery Ward and Co. store at the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

Jobs For Collegians—

That's Task Of Marin's Miss Draper

"Miss Draper, I'm taking a pre-med course and I am interested in a job assisting in a medical laboratory," says Frank.

"Miss Draper, I'm looking for a summer job as a nurse's aide," Susan explains.

"Miss Draper, I'm anxious to get a part-time job to help with expenses," says Henry.

THESE ARE typical requests from hundreds of College of Marin students looking for regular, part-time or summer jobs to supplement and finance college study or to start making use of what they have learned.

How do the students go about finding a job? What does the college do to help them?

Finding Jobs For Collegians

of Employment to provide a job placement service on the campus.

The Department of Employment agreed to furnish a member of its staff, and the college, in turn, agreed to furnish a small office in the counseling center for interviewing and placement of students.

Since that time more than 350 students have found jobs ranging from baby sitters to chauffeurs, from messengers to models, and many others have been helped in long-range career planning.

Leslie Draper, State Department of Employment representative at the college, is a woman who combines a warm regard for young people with the experienced eye of the personnel interviewer.

Her own employment background well qualifies her to serve the direct needs of both the student and the employer.

REPRESENTATIVES of a foreign company, assistant magazine editor, recreation director, insurance underwriter—these are some of the jobs Miss Draper has held during her own working career.

"When a student and I sit down to discuss a career, I can often give him the benefit of my own experience to add to what he already knows," she explains. "It adds to a student's confidence to be able to talk with someone who has worked in his or her chosen field," she continued. "Of course, my own experience also better equips me to judge whether a student has the necessary interest and abilities to succeed in the field.

"You know a student is doing much more than asking about a career or job when he comes to see me," said Miss Draper. "He is really asking for an appraisal of what he is worth, sometimes for the first time in his life. It's a time when he needs all the confidence he can get."

A close working relationship is established between the college and Miss Draper to assure that a job will enhance a student's course of study, but will not seriously hamper his academic program.

"THE MORE mature student realizes that work experience is a basic part of his education," said Miss Draper. "While the bulk of our calls for part-time employment is for domestic work, we try whenever possible to fit a job into a student's particular career area.

"The most important thing, of course, is that a student can then get a feel for the field he wants to enter."

Part of Miss Draper's job is to find out what general and special abilities a student has.

"Many students will come in thinking they have little to offer except a willingness to work," she said. "These students are usually quite surprised to find that they have combinations of skills and abilities that they have seldom thought about. One of the most satisfying moments to me is when a student discovers that he actually has something he can sell."

WHAT ABOUT unusual job requests?

"One artist in the area needed a male model with an Olympian physique for a special project," Miss Draper recalls. "He said he had reached the point where he couldn't go another step until he had the model. Further, he had to have him within the hour.

"I laid aside my card file and went right out on the campus in pursuit of an appropriate physical specimen. With the help of some of the students we were able to get the model—and within the hour."

What is ahead for the job placement program?

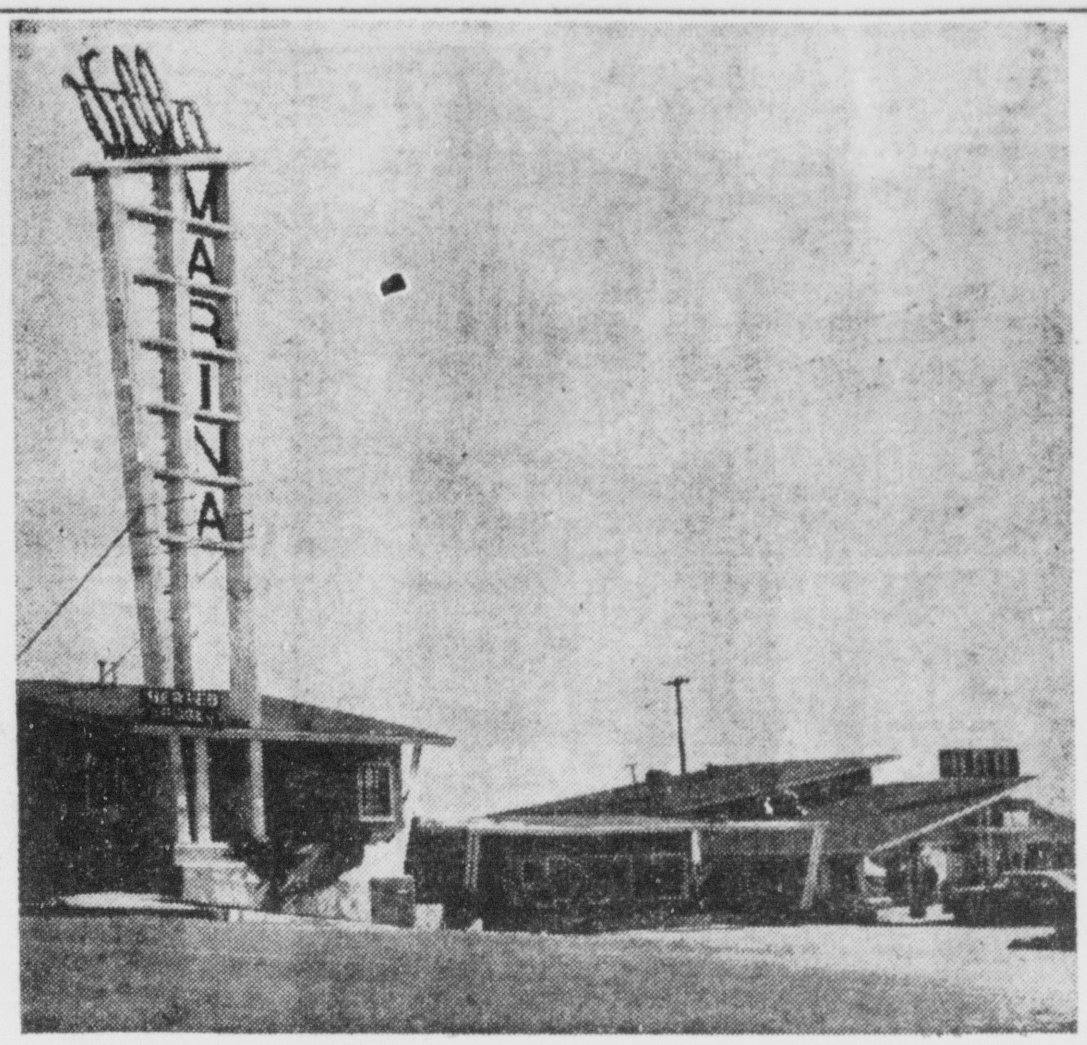

"The number of students requesting jobs has increased every month since we've been here," said Miss Draper.

"We would like to be able to expand our service to help place more students graduating from occupational programs. Also, we want to be able to serve College of Marin alumni. To do so, we need more employers with full-time job opportunities."

IT'S A BIG DECISION

Picking Your Easter Bonnet Is Tough

You are with Jeanette Dahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Dahl of 448 Oak Manor Drive, Fairfax, in Bell's Children's Shop in San Rafael, where the 6-year-old is trying to select a bonnet to complete her Easter finery. Like most women shopping for a hat, Jeanette's a little hard to please. The first several bonnets fail to win her approval. But perseverance pays off and at the lower right hand corner of page M-13, she finally finds just the Easter hat she wanted.

'NO,' SAYS JEANETTE, 'NONE OF THESE ARE QUITE WHAT I HAD IN MIND.'

But Jeanette's Hunt Ends In Success

"NOW HERE," says Jeanette Dahl, "is one that might do. In fact, it looks just like what I had in mind." And she submits it to the mirror test.

YES, JEANETTE is convinced that this is the Easter bonnet for her. Just the thing, she believes, to go with her new and frilly dress. Do you think Jeanette made a good choice? We do, so did the clerk at Bell's Children's Shop. But then, of course, the final veto rests with Jeanette's mother.

COVER PHOTO

THE VERY picture of spring beauty and serenity is 6-year-old Jeanette Dahl of Fairfax, all dolled up in her new Easter clothes and bonnet and with Easter bunny in hand. Children all over Marin will be blossoming like flowers in their prettiest new Easter togs tomorrow. BOOK REVIEWS

Factual Account Of Fetterman Massacre Is Exciting Reading

FORT PHIL KEARNY: AN AMERICAN SAGA by Dee Brown, G. P. Putnam's Sons, 229 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

In 1866 the magic word "gold" began to draw fortune seekers to Alder Creek, in what was then Dakota Territory—near the present site of Helena, Mont. To get there, they had to cross land reserved as the last home of the Sioux, the Crow, the Cheyenne and Arapaho in a treaty less than a year old.

There was pressure on the United States government to protect the gold-lured immigrants. To do it, a small force of troops was sent to establish two forts far out on the Bozeman Trail.

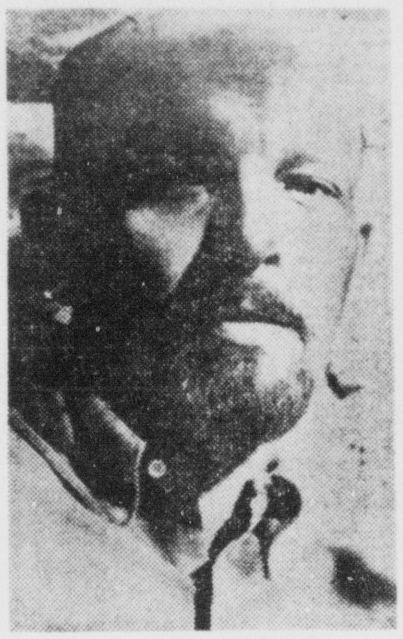

The commander charged with this task was Col. Henry B. Carrington, who had served through the Civil War without ever participating in a skirmish, and who knew nothing of Indians.

He arrived in Laramie as a new treaty was being signed with the tribes. But the main body of the Sioux were not represented. Their war chief Red Cloud swore he would sign no treaty until the white man abandoned the Bozeman Trail.

The two new forts were to be named Phil Kearny, for the Civil War hero, and C. F. Smith. Colonel Carrington made Fort Phil Kearny his headquarters.

The fort was finished when, near the year's end, a new second-in-command joined Carrington: Capt. William J. Fetterman, who had fought with Sherman to the sea—but who had never fought Indians.

What followed has gone down in history as the Fetterman Massacre. Captain Fetterman was sent with an expedition to relieve a wood train which was under Indian attack. Lying in wait for him, and luring him on with decoys were more than 2,000 Sioux, Cheyennes and Arapahoes.

R. L. HARDMAN
Migrants his subject

Dee Brown has taken this chapter of frontier history and woven it into a book not one whit less exciting for being stripped clean of the fictionized trimmings found in most accounts of the Fetterman Massacre.

Brown's hero is cautious, conscientious and sometimes plaintive Colonel Carrington. Headstrong Captain Fetterman is but a pawn in the tragedy. And the villain is not really Red Cloud, but a United States government yielding to pressure to break a year-old treaty with the Indians, but unwilling or unable to provide the force to cope with the nations of red men fighting a last-ditch war for their last home on earth.

The Rajah Writes

MY WAR WITH BASEBALL by Rogers Hornsby with Bill Surface, Coward-McCann Inc., 253 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Along with his reputation as the greatest right-handed hitter in baseball history, Rogers Hornsby has also come to be regarded as one of the game's most outspoken and controversial figures. This book will do nothing to diminish that reputation.

With characteristic disregard for diplomacy, Hornsby comments freely and frankly on a number of baseball subjects. Nor does he hesitate to name names in handing out lumps to some of the sport's top personalities.

Some Hornsby beliefs:

General managers (Frank Lane, for instance) are infringing too much upon the prerogatives of field managers.

There won't be any more .400 hitters—largely because of the obsession with home runs.

Players and managers who bait umpires are doing their teams a disservice. Umps Hornsby holds, are a much maligned group and actually make far fewer mistakes than do the players.

Ninety-five per cent of the pitchers today throw any kind of pitch they can get away with—legal or illegal.

The benefits of signal-stealing are greatly exaggerated. But other forms of "cheating" do pay off—"and you've got to cheat to win."

Smoking is more harmful to athletes than drinking.

Hornsby sounds pretty silly when he says "any physically able American boy who doesn't play baseball is not, in my opinion.

But except for those few cases when his enthusiasm runs away with him, Hornsby documents his opinions well. These observations along with the account of his career as player, manager and coach make "My War With Baseball" the best baseball book we have read in a spring which has seen a heavy output of such tomes.

It's Barbecue Time

Here, then, is a timely book done in Sunset's usual thorough and imaginative manner. There are general instructions in barbecue techniques, 483 recipes, and a photo guide on barbecuing.

As a compatible companion for the barbecue book, you might want to also pick up another new Sunset product, "Sunset Salad Book." It also sells for $1.95 and contains recipes for 301 salads and dressings.

THIS ILLUSTRATION by artist William Shields is one of the chapter headings in the new edition of the Lane Book Co.'s "The Sunset Barbecue Cook Book." Selling for $1.95 as a paperback, it is also available at $3.50 casebound or at $5.95 in a slipcased set with "The Sunset Salad Book."

Forgotten Minority

NO OTHER HARVEST by R. L. Hardman, Doubleday and Co., 346 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

In our proper concern for racial and religious minorities we are likely to forget that there are other groups in this country who are also the victims of cruel exploitation and discrimination.

One such is the migrant worker — and California is among the worst offenders.

As we said, we are likely to forget them—until some television documentary, or a book such as "No Other Harvest" reminds us of this ugly fact of life.

This, then, is the story of the people of "Grapes of Wrath" some 20 years later.

It is the story of the relationship of these downtrodden residents of squalid rural slums to their employers — the land barons of the San Joaquin Valley. And of the relationships of both these groups to the middlemen, the labor contractors.

Also present are those well meaning but outnumbered forces which work to better the lot of the field worker and his family.

Into this pot, toss the relatively recent developments of farm mechanization and union organization, plus an involved family relationship, and you have Hardman's story.

It is a first novel, and as such is exceptional. Hardman is not without his weaknesses, most noticeably in his characterizations. There is a tendency toward the stereotype. And sometimes his characters react or act with an eccentricity that moves them beyond the boundaries of belief.

The tangled family relationship around which Hardman builds his plot is extremely unlikely though not outside the realm of possibility.

But it is in presenting the hard, cold facts of the economic and social life of the San Joaquin Valley that Hardman is most effective. And this provides ample justification for the reading of his book.

A Candidate Speaks

SUFFER, LITTLE CHILDREN by Max L. Rafferty, The Devin-Adair Co., 166 pages, $3. Reviewed by Don Keown.

With the incumbent retiring, Californians this year are showing more than the usual amount of interest in the election of their next state superintendent of public instruction.

One of the aspirants whose name will appear on the ballot is Max L. Rafferty.

Rafferty has a reputation as a foe of "progressiveism," as an advocate of what he calls "survivalism."

But these labels, after all, give only the skimpiest idea as to his educational philosophy. Here in this book in detail he enumerates his criticism of present-day educational trends and his proposals for changing their direction. Read it. Then you can decide for yourself if he is the "skipper" you want at the helm of the ship of education in your state.

Sausalito Little Theater Tackles Its Biggest Challenge

Marin audiences are ready and willing to support plays on a higher plane than "Where's Charley?"

This has been the experience of the lively Sausalito Little Theater. And the troupe's willingness to venture into the more difficult theatrical paths has won it an increasing reputation and prestige.

Sausalito Little Theater's policy of tackling more difficult plays dates back six years. Then its board of directors decided, with some misgivings, to go along with the play reading committee's recommendation that the Anouilh version of "Antigone" be produced.

"Antigone" was generally regarded as the group's proud gesture toward culture. It proved, however, to be a great deal more than that — a smash boxoffice success that drew good reviews from critics.

There followed the likes of "Waltz of the Toreadors," "The Crucible" and "Playboy of the Western World," all performed with marked success.

Now, the little theater group feels, it is tackling its most challenging undertaking to date — "The Visit" by Swiss playwright Friedrich Durrenmatt.

"The Visit" opened last night in the little playhouse on Sausalito's Bridgeway, and will run for five weekends, Friday and Saturday evenings, with curtain time at 8:30.

Members of the troupe describe "The Visit" as "an exciting modern-day morality play" with "enormous problems for a community theater."

The cast is huge with 34 roles. Lighting and sound are highly technical, calling for equipment the Sausalito Little Theater has never before used. The needed props are bizarre, exotic, and could not be plucked from someone's attic. They had to be specially built.

THE MAN in command of solving all these problems has been Dr. Earle Marsh, director.

His lieutenants include:

John Sunier of Sausalito, editor of Bay Area FM & Cultural Guide, stereo technician and harpsichordist, who is in charge of music and sound effects. In several scenes he is required to bring the roar of a train into the theater via tape recording.

Irene Griffin in charge of costumes, who taught costume history and design at Stanford University and prior to that had her own costume business in New York City.

Diana Brewer, responsible again for the sets after her great success in that department in the Sausalito Little Theater melodrama this past summer.

PAT SWEENY of Sausalito, Little Theater president, is production manager. Lynne Arden and George Hitchcock head the cast.

These are the ones who have borne the heaviest responsibility in preparing "The Visit" for its introduction to Marin audiences on a stage only 20 by 40 feet in its dimension. That, in itself, poses a major problem. But then, Sausalito Little Theater seems to enjoy meeting just such challenges head-on.

STEREO NOTES

The Original Stereophony As Heard In Cathedrals

By JOHN SUNIER
Editor, Bay FM and Cultural Guide

WORKS OF ANDREA AND GIOVANNI GABRIELI — Frederick Fennell conducting the Eastman Wind Ensemble; Mercury Stereo SR 90245.

This music was perhaps the original stereophony, with broadly separated choirs of players, often located at opposite ends of a cathedral, or on widely-spaced balconies.

The one work by Andrea Gabrieli on this disc, "Aria Della Battaglia," is an early piece of battle music. Giovanni, Andrea's nephew, wrote most of his music for the elegant and spectacular religious services and processions in and out of the Bascilica of St. Mark's in Venice.

The two sonatas and four canzoni of Giovanni Gabrieli are from his "Sacrae Symphoniae" of 1597, and are dedicated to the church. The brasses are stirring and exciting and the stereo effect enables the complex polyphony to be more easily heard.

One can easily imagine a festive occasion in the Piazza San Marco upon hearing these works.

This particular recording has been made on 35 millimeter magnetic film by a new process that several record companies have adopted. The advantages are lower background noise, tape hiss, flutter and cross-talk between stereo channels.

Also the wider tracks in Mercury's three-track original recordings and the faster speed of the film over tape usually used, results in greater transient response and frequency range.

Congratulations to Mercury for venturing out into less well-traveled avenues of music as they have in this release and in another recent release featuring the music of Alban Berg.

GARDENERS:

It's Fun To Grow Unusuals

It's exasperating to have a visitor in your garden who says, "Oh, yes, I have that, and that, only mine are bigger."

While it's not necessary that you enter into competition with your friends in order to derive satisfaction from your garden, there's no blinking at the fact that there is a pleasure in excelling.

THERE ARE two ways to excel:

First, you can grow the very best of their kind, whatever the flower may be. This is definitely not easy, for there always seems to be some oldtimer near by who has developed an unbeatable technique in his specialty through the years. You can do it, too, but no one can tell you how.

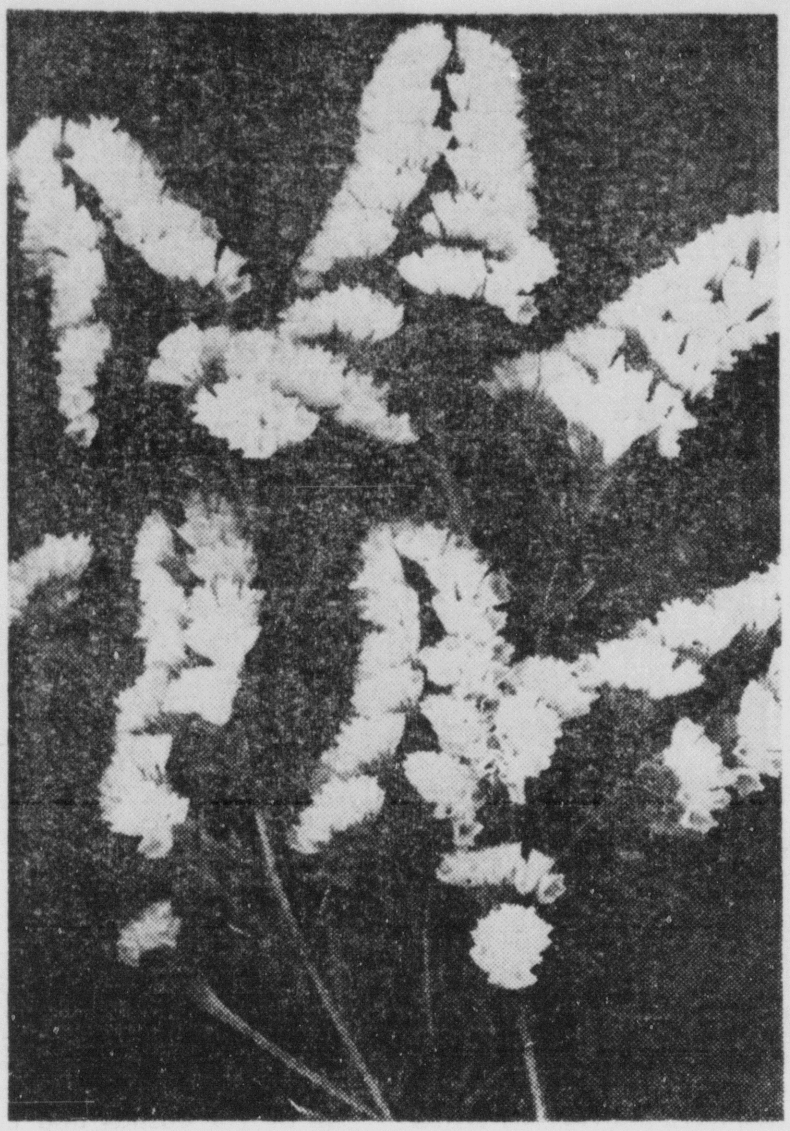

There's another way:

If you include flowers in your garden that your visitors have never seen before you can stop them in their tracks and have them saying, "My goodness, what's that lovely thing?"

Now this little trick in making a superior garden isn't hard to do. You let the know-it-alls nod their heads and talk about their superior zinnias, and you just stand there and smile when they can't even name your sanvitalia procumbens.

"Oh," you say, "that is sort of a zinnia, too. They call it the creeping zinnia because it lies so flat to the ground. Very rarely grown in this country."

Not only is sanvitalia easy to grow, but there are a lot of other odd flowers that are also well within the capabilities of a fairly inexperienced amateur, and they are not only uncommon but often uncommonly pretty, too.

STATICE IS a favorite florist subject because it is exotic in appearance, holds almost indefinitely as a cut flower and is easy to grow. (Bodger Seeds photo)

HERE ARE some suggestions:

Anchusa Blue Bird; Sweet Sultan, with the most gigantic tufted cornflowers you ever dreamed of; Sweet Wivelsfield, with a fragrance rare in annual flowers; Blue Lace Flower (didiscus); Gold Flame Rudbeckia, with refined, multiple-petal blooms in gold and a touch of mahogany at the base of each, and plants only a football; Mexican Tulip Poppy (hunnemania); Baby Blue Eyes (nemophila); Queen Anne's Lace, for wonderful additions to bouquets; Statice, for long, curling branches of stiff little flowers in several colors that are so enduring they are used for winter bouquets.

The things all these annual flowers have in common are simplicity of growing, relative rarity, and yet fairly wide availability.

It's fun to stump the experts. Why don't you give it a try?

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔ Bedding plants abound in nurseries this month. Be sure you plant enough to fill your garden with color all summer long.

✔ Mulch around camelias, fuchsias and other moisture loving plants with a good thick layer of wet peat moss, steer manure or leaf mold.

✔ Fuchsias should be pinched back frequently to encourage bushiness and plenty of the new wood that blooms are borne on.

✔ Lawn planting should be the first order of business for gardeners who need a new carpet of green.

YOU AND YOUR INSURANCE

HOMEOWNERS PACKAGE OFFERS BROAD INSURANCE COVERAGE

A reader asks what types of insurance he should have on his home.

There was a time when a homeowner would have had to purchase at least three separate policies to afford the protection our reader should have in order to cover his home and its contents effectively and to provide necessary liability protection. Today, however, it can all be done with a single policy.

The answer lies with the new homeowners insurance policy. Initiated about 10 years ago, the homeowners plan has enjoyed tremendous success and presently is the fastest growing form of insurance.

By tying all policies applicable to homeowners into one neat package, the insurance industry has been able to produce a broad protection plan at a reduced cost. Features of the program include fire protection for the house and contents, also theft and burglary insurance; and coverage for personal liability in the event that through your negligence someone is injured on your property. It also covers medical payments for anyone injured on your property regardless of fault.

While these are the major items covered by the "Homeowners" policy, they are only an indication of its broad protection. It also covers against hail, windstorm, explosion and falling aircraft, and provides reimbursement for additional expenses if you have to find other living quarters while your home is being repaired or replaced.

There are several types of homeowners policies tailored to individual needs. Your local independent insurance agent can give you a complete rundown as to which form will best serve your purposes.

Luxurious Living In Bon Air

A recent step-up in apartment house construction on Via Casitas and Via Belardo in the Bon Air subdivision of Greenbrae will soon provide additional luxury housing for nearly 200 families.

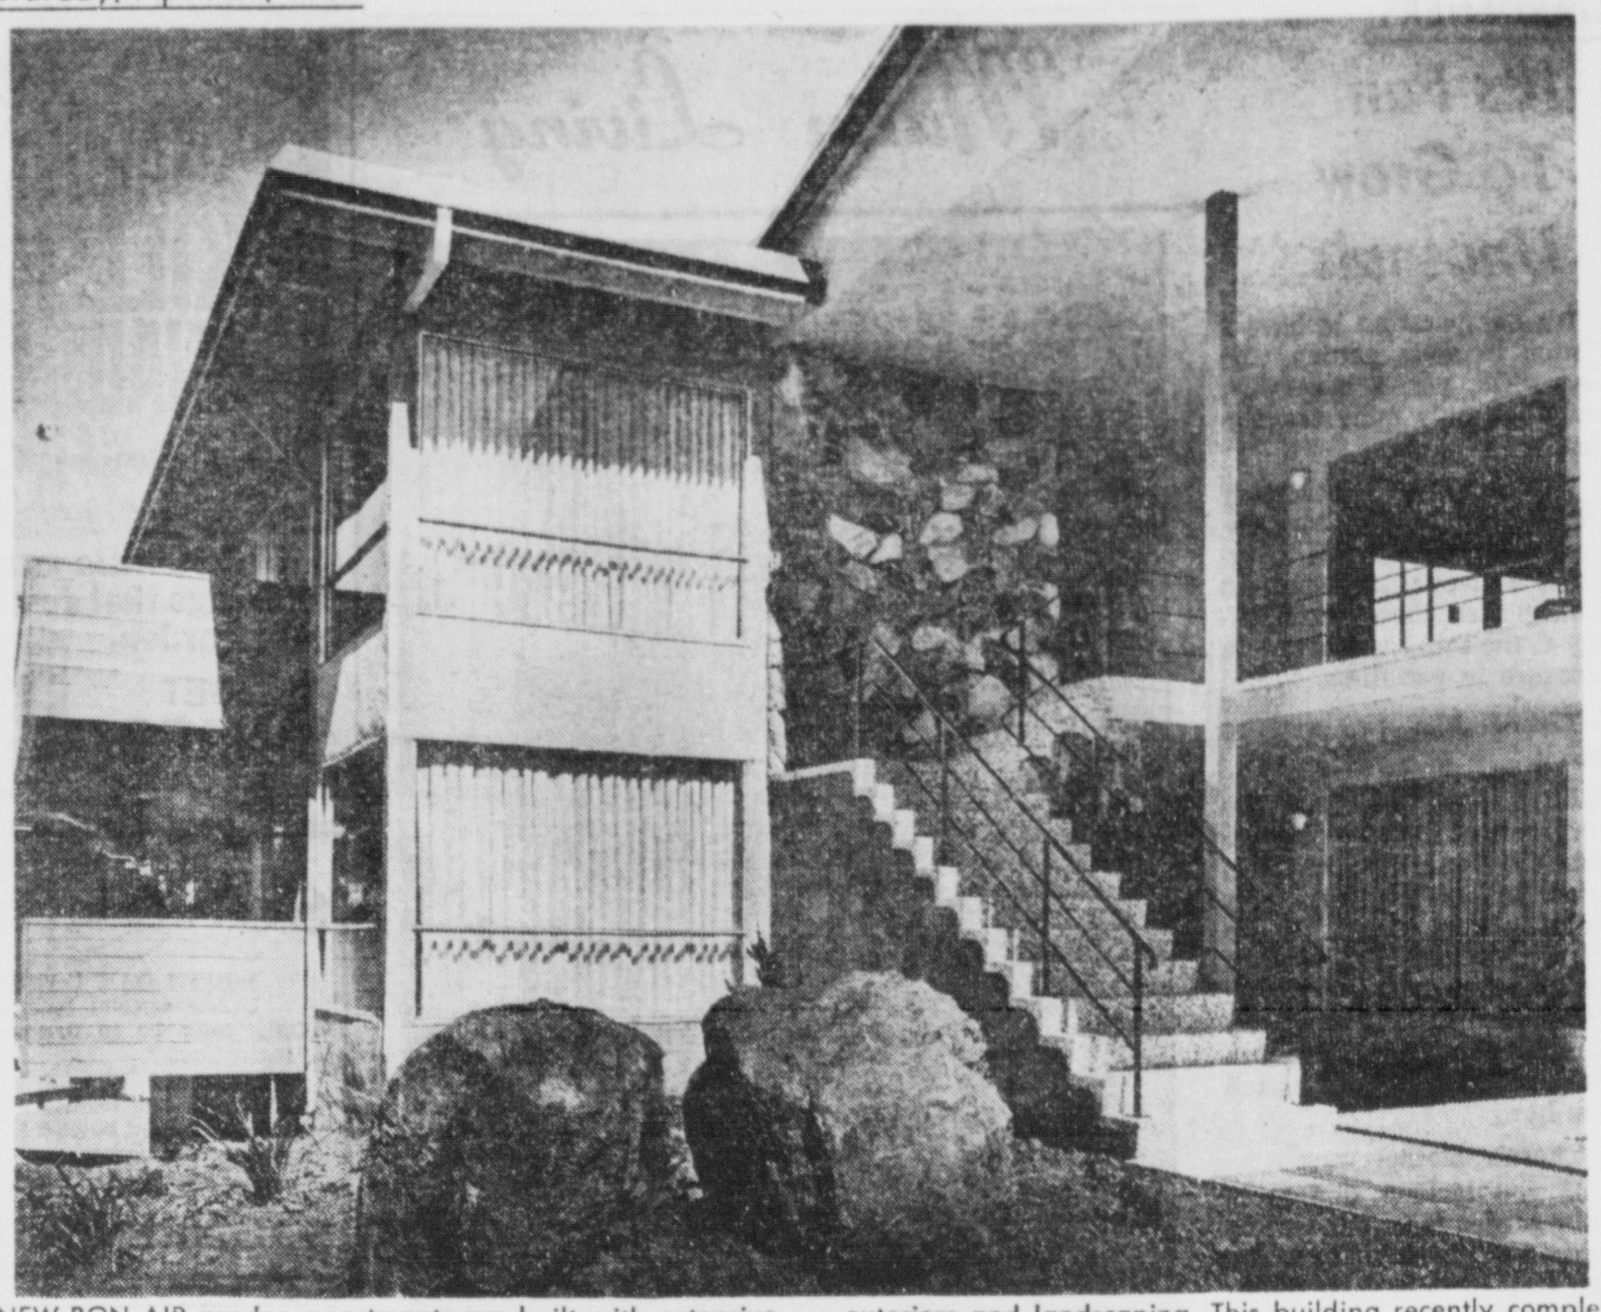

The Schultz Building Co. has just completed three new buildings and a fourth is in progress.

A fifth building containing 50 living units is on the firm's drawing boards.

More choice building sites located on the hilltop which have sweeping views of Mt. Tamalpais, Marin hills and San Francisco Bay have been purchased by other developers. Hillside Co. of Millbrae has started a four-building, 36-apartment cluster; the Kingston Properties is preparing for a nine-unit building and a 10-apartment condominium is being planned by Heiman and McCall. Another owner is contemplating 30 units.

Some of the apartments already built and projected for the area are in the moderate price range but most will be of the luxury type. Two and three-bedroom units are scheduled, many with two baths.

All follow the general pattern established by the Schultz building interests for Bon Air: Careful community, site and interior planning, individually styled exteriors, outside exposure for all rooms to take advantage of the view, large storage, laundry and other facilities and emphasis on open space between buildings. Large private balconies are featured; apartments are provided with extensive closet space.

NEW BON AIR garden apartments are built with extensive open space between buildings and have individually styled exteriors and landscaping. This building recently completde at Via Casitas and El Portal shows the wide private balconies provided for each unit. (Photos by Ken Molino)

LARGE CORNER WINDOWS give a pleasing outlook on other garden apartments along Via Casitas and show the site planning which affords unobstructed view possibilities for each living unit. Some of the landscaping in the area has already been completed; will include all-year flowering shrubs and plants. (More photos on Page M-19)

LARGE ROOMS with "window walls," U-shaped, all-electric kitchen with ash cabinets and wide hallway leading to the sleeping quarters in the Via Casitas model unit give more of an effect of "home living" than apartment layout. Three-bedroom, two-bath units have as much as 1,240 square feet of interior floor space.

TYPICAL OF existing and "under-construction" apartments on the Bon Air hilltop is this model unit at 384 Via Casitas furnished by Casa Marin of San Rafael. Furnishings were tastefully selected to emphasize the hardwood wall paneling in the living room. The unit is supplied with thick-pile nylon wall-to-wall carpeting over heavy foam rubber padding.

Without Facts Senior Citizen Commission Can't Go On

The question seems to be whether the Board of Supervisors wants to know something about the senior citizens situation in Marin or it doesn't.

At first it seemed that the board did. It appointed a Senior Citizens Programming and Building Commission.

The commission held meetings and found out they didn't know basic facts on which to make a recommendation to the supervisors. So they asked for a study—costing $6,200—to get these facts.

The supervisors balked, but agreed to consider the matter again next Tuesday.

We haven't been in on the meetings of this commission. We don't know how they came about to choose the man they proposed to do the survey. We don't know exactly what facts they found to be lacking.

But we do know that the personnel of that commission is of the highest, some of the most dedicated and able men and women in the county. If they say they don't have the facts they need, we believe them.

Perhaps the facts are available. Perhaps the supervisors knew them all the time. If this is the case, certainly the supervisors are derelict for not producing them for the commission.

But we suspect the facts aren't readily available. If they are here at all, they are probably so widely spread it will take someone working exclusively on the project to amass them for use.

It may well be that the $6,000 could be better spent in salary for a staff member on the commission, one who could amass the facts, although we assume the commission considered this.

But what we would hate to see would be for the supervisors to merely say, "No Money" and let things die there.

Facts are needed. We don't care whether an "expert" gathers them or the job is turned over to an electronic brain.

If the expert isn't hired, the supervisors should either make other arrangements for gathering the facts or dismiss the commission. Without facts, they can't operate.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Dr. Hugo H. Fudenberg of Mill Valley on the award in France of the Louis Pasteur Medal of Honor for outstanding contributions in the field of immunology.

BOUQUETS to the Easter Bunny: Welcome aboard, mate!

BRICKBATS to the supervisors for threatening suit to regain taxes paid for study of rapid transit. Who do they want to pay for our studies, the taxpayers of other counties in the transit district?

BRICKBATS to caterpillars that spoil trees and invade houses. Scat!

BOUQUETS to all newly elected mayors; you've got your hands full, fellows.

BOUQUETS to the Dominican students who again walked off with the sweepstakes cup in foreign language achievement in competition with more than 30 other schools. BOUQUETS to their teachers too.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

HOLY SATURDAY

Jesus is dead. He lies in the tomb. He died that you might live, proving His love for you to the last drop of His blood.

His request to you is to continue what He began. He died for all. He wishes to continue to live here in the souls of men and to carry on His work through your cooperation.

In His first appearance to His disciples after the Resurrection, Christ gave His followers the sublime and thrilling mission of bringing peace to the world:

"Peace be to you! As the Father has sent Me, I also send you."

(John 20:21)

This was more than just a polite suggestion. It was a solemn command to carry the peace of God to the whole world—that precious peace for which all mankind longs. No greater support has been given any mission.

The whole of heaven is behind anyone who throws himself into the task. That is a direct invitation and challenge to you.

"The sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory to come that will be revealed in us."

(Romans 8:18)

Give me the strength, O heavenly Father, to do my part in carrying Your Son's peace to all men.

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

Clem Miller Due Here On Easter 'Vacation' Tour Of The District

By CHAPIN A. DAY

'CHIP' DAY

Rep. Clem Miller of Corte Madera flew into Eureka yesterday to start an Easter "vacation" tour of the First Congressional District. The congressman is chairing the two-day Federal Forest Resources Conference in Eureka, then will start swinging through the district. He reaches Marin County next Thursday morning when he meets with the League of Women Voters at 10 o'clock, goes to San Francisco for a luncheon. Then he's back that night for a dinner meeting at Peacock Gap Country Club, San Rafael with the Marin County Committee on Political Education.

In Napa and Sonoma Counties Friday and Saturday, he's back to Marin Saturday afternoon. At 3:15 p.m. the congressman is scheduled to participate in a flag presentation ceremony to Boy Scout Troop 39 in Santa Venetia.

Saturday night he's the honored guest at a $100 per plate dinner at the Felix Warburg home in Ross. Then, after dashing up to Duncan Mills to attend the Russian River Sportsmen's annual barbeque Sunday, he'll rush back to a cocktail party from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Jerome Flax home in Ross.

Monday he will meet with Marin County officials and speak at tree planting ceremonies of San Rafael Rotary Club at San Rafael High School at noon.

That evening, April 30, he'll fly back to Washington to end his "vacation."

ANOTHER DEMOCRAT, not seeking election but vitally interested in its outcome, comes to Marin the next day.

Mrs. Edmund G. Brown, wife of the governor, starts a three-day round of parties at a May Day garden reception at the home of Mrs. Berrien P. Anderson in San Rafael.

The parties, nine of them, are sponsored by the Democratic Key Women of Northern California, of which Mrs. Nancy Swadesh of Mill Valley is chairman. They will all take place in three days in communities of the Bay Area. The first one is the only one in Marin.

MARIN'S ASSEMBLYMAN William T. Bagley was pleased with the endorsements last week by organized labor's Committee On Political Education (COPE).

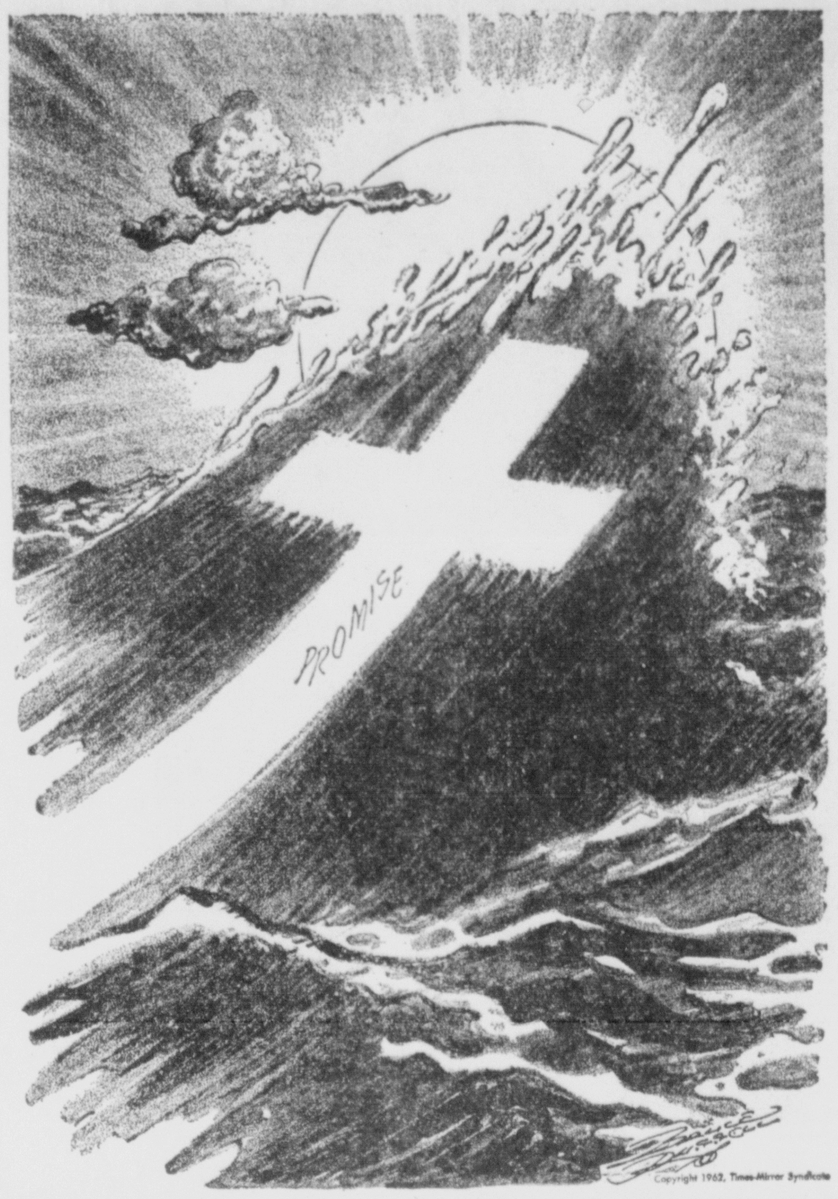

COPE made no endorsement in the Seventh Assembly District. Now Bagley hopes he can get endorsements from individual unions.

MARIN FEDERATION of Republican Women will have both GOP lieutenant governor candidates at their luncheon Tuesday in Tamalpais Center, Kentfield. Rumor was that San Francisco Mayor George Christopher wouldn't be there. But he will.

Probably Sen. John F. McCarthy, the other candidate, would have liked it better if the mayor hadn't made it. After all, it is McCarthy Day in Marin that day.

AUTHOR - SEMANTICIST Dr. S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley has been named honorary chairman of the Marin campaign of State Controller Alan Cranston.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Drowned Person A Dead Person

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Spring is here. Ah! beautiful spring, with summer just around the corner.

Our lovely county has an abundance of private swimming pools, same which are a sheer delight for the entire family. One can swim from the "cradle to the grave" and for health rewarding properties, swimming is tops.

However, let us not become complacent regarding water safety and pool safety. Most heartbreaking tragedies that happen CAN BE PREVENTED.

We are blessed with two good agencies in Marin, the American Red Cross and the Marin County Health Department.

Contact them, follow their suggested rules for pool safety and sanitation.

Don't allow tragedy to strike. Practice pool safety in all of its forms.

Remember, a drowned person is a dead person.

Reds Abolish Private Property

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

President Kennedy's recent attack on the steel industry has prompted me to write you this letter and request that you publish it.

Karl Marx, in his Communist manifesto, deliberately reduced Communism to a single sentence: "The theory of the Communists," he wrote, "is the abolition of private property." Every enlargement of the area of public property cuts into the existing area of private property. When we shrink that area, we automatically and inevitably advance the ultimate objective of the Communist world-conquest as that objective was defined by Marx himself.

If we were informed, vigilant and determined in this war with Communism we would know that a militant offensive for the extended protection of private property, private enterprise and private profit is a condition precedent to victory in this cold war. The billions we spend every year for the promotion and maintenance of our war effort all come from the profits on private property and the employment of private property in private enterprise.

A detached, objective observer would assume that we would put the protection and encouragement of this revenue-producing private property system on the very top of our official agenda for anti-communist action. Imagine the shocked surprise of such an observer to find that as a matter of fact our government now fights its supporting private property, private profit system with far greater energy than it employs in fighting Communism.

If the climate and opportunity for free enterprise, and profits is allowed to be progressively stifled by socialistic government — AMERICA WILL DIE.

For the information of your readers both my husband and myself are members of the laboring class and both belong to a union. We know that what is good for the "big guys" is good for the little ones too. Let's not shoot the goose that lays the golden eggs!

Not Allowing Sewers Is No Ban

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Under date line of March 29, there appeared an article in the Independent-Journal which stated that the board of directors of Sanitary District No. 2 of Marin County had banned all connections to the district sewer system.

The board of directors wish to point out that this article was in extreme error. The exact wording and the exact policy of the board (as excerpted from the district minute book) shows that this was not a ban, but that the board was disallowing additional connections to the district system pending the resolvement of a problem created by the town of Corte Madera in their refusal to grant a conditional use permit for the construction of a pumping station on property on Paradise Drive; and that the matter would again be before the board for consideration and resolvement at the next meeting of April 3.

At the time this determination was made, there was only one application on file with the board requesting connection to the district system.

We would very much appreciate your publishing a correction to this incorrect image which has been created in the public mind, and which has caused the district much extra work load by people proposing to construct projects within the district.

W. A. ADAM,
Secretary-Manager.
Corte Madera.

Movie Chain Eyeing Old PG&E Building As San Rafael Theater?

A well-known movie chain is reported to be interested in putting up a brand new theater in San Rafael.

The scuttlebutt on Fourth Street is that the movie moguls have their eyes on the old PG&E building at the corner of Fourth and E streets.

As you know, PG&E will soon be moving into new quarters at Third and Brooks.

NOW THAT the new city councils are seated and the new mayors are getting used to the gavel, interest is focusing on the upcoming June election.

Men like Coroner Frank Keaton never stopped campaigning since their last election. But this year, some joker has come up with a new slogan for the incumbent coroner: "Equal Rites for Women!"

Not much has been heard of the other aspirant for the coroner's job—Forrest Johnson of Terra Linda. But there's a reason for that. Johnson is buried neck deep in term papers and final exams at UC where he is due for a master's degree in public health.

But his big test is on June 5 at the primaries.

A YOUNG MAN dressed only in a thick beard and a thin bikini tip-toed into the courthouse last week and set off an uproar among the secretaries.

Bailiff Jack Agnew took a second look to make sure he was seeing straight, then told the youth to get out of the courthouse and go jump in the lake.

He was last seen scurrying barefooted down the corridor.

YOU STILL have a full week before daylight saving starts, but you can start practicing getting up an hour earlier.

The Big Switch comes about 2 a.m. on Sunday, April 29. That's when you advance your clocks an hour.

DOES MARVELOUS Marin actually exist? A magazine just got through calling the county an All-American "city."

Now comes a major oil company, which announces in bold letters on its credit cards: "The Country of Marin."

Then from Honolulu comes the "Hawaii Calls" program in tape form, which Marin's radio station KTIM has been broadcasting. One tape arrived by mail the other day. It included a salute to the new stations joining the program.

It welcomed KTIM, "located in lovely Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, 70 miles north of San Francisco," etc.

KTIM manager Hugh Turner promptly mailed the tape back to producer Webley Edwards, located in lovely Hawaii, South Seas, some 6,000 miles west of San Francisco.

We Mustn't Make Weakening Berlin Concessions Just For Treaty

WASHINGTON—The U. S. press has recently been filled with "leaks" from Bonn about American proposals to solve the Berlin crisis.

Some of them are inaccurate. High officials here state that we have never favored and would not, at least at this stage, accept any reduction in U. S. forces defending West Berlin.

Some of them are accurate. We favor "technical commissions"—made up of West Germans, East Germans, and West Berliners—to supervise the many and, perhaps, expanding contacts between the two parts of divided Germany. Until Germany is united we see no alternative to such arrangements.

THE SURFACING of such details, true and untrue, by German sources dissatisfied with either what we are proposing or what their own government is doing, is undoubtedly a diplomatic embarrassment and a handicap to negotiating with the Soviets who use every difference among the Allies to demand more.

But I venture the view that all of these leaks are not harmful. They are alerting American public opinion to the danger of potentially imprudent concessions to get an accommodation over Berlin.

The end result, I think will show the Kennedy administration that the American people would rather risk no agreement than have a dubious agreement.

I AM CONFIDENT that neither President Kennedy nor Secretary of State Rusk have any intention of selling West Berlin for a paper pact. Their firm determination is to defend Western rights in Berlin and to maintain access to the city by force if necessary.

But there are pressures within the administration and inside the Allied councils to make concessions—sometimes called "non-concessions" — which could have the effect of confirming Moscow's domination of East Germany and its seizure of East Berlin in the name of a settlement.

It will be well to be on guard against unintended weaknesses. It will be well to be on guard against a kind of "settlement" which can be called "strengthening our position" but which could end up weakening our position.

I am not arguing against "technical commissions" manned by East and West Germans to supervise the many needed relationships between divided Germany. I am not arguing against an "international access authority" to assuret he day-to-day observance of transportation of people and goods to and from West Berlin. These arrangements, if the Soviets really want to take the crisis out of Berlin, would not weaken Western rights and might strengthen them.

BUT LET US BEAR in mind that the "concessions" offered tot he Soviets in the 1959 Geneva conference of foreign ministers were then proposed to avert the kind of illegal actions against Berlin which the Kremlin has undertaken during the past year—such as the denial of free transit between the two Berlins, the erection of the hideous "Berlin wall," the recent harrassment of the air lanes.

Concessions on our part, which were valid before these illegal actions, cannot be valid today. If we make them, we would be simply notifying the Soviets that they can continue to get what they want by making trouble.

The Country Parson

"I guess we don't have much trouble learning prayers of thanksgiving and petition—it's so natural to be thankful for what we have—and to want more of it."
